Putting My Bets on Kearny

I am an optimist at heart, but I am not a Pollyanna who can see only good things. It is the good things of this town which brought me here nine years ago: tree-lined streets, good government (including twice-weekly garbage pickup), adequate medical services, a pharmacy and a grocery store; the busy swimming pool and the ball games across the street from my house; going to the Post Office to get the mail and seeing everyone; and good Mexican food and pizza (and this is not all I could list).

Small towns are my thing. Most of my life has been in small towns, including Seligman (pop. 600) where I was born.

Most of the good things are still here, but recent years have been hard on Kearny. For example, the booming economy of the 1990s lured many people to buy homes in the Valley of the Sun. Our school population dropped -- and our state legislature is not a friend to small schools with declining populations. Copper town economies used to be recession-proof, but the recent recession hit us hard. While the metropolitan areas are recovering, the rural areas are not. Then, to crown it all, the Bank of the West closed in Kearny. The Ray Federal Credit Union has done its best to fill in the vacancy, but many bank out of town (and, as a result, increasingly shop out of town). The town revenue from the local sales tax, which is vital to town government, has dropped considerably. Our local businesses are doing their best. We welcome the new owners of the auto parts store who are making a real investment here. Still, this is not a thriving business climate.

We are not alone in having these concerns. Hayden and Winkelman share our cultural heritage and our problems. Working together, we can address the issues from a stronger position. I'm still putting my bets on Kearny and the Copper Basin. In the next few weeks, I will write more about these things and seek your help in bringing about positive change.

Dark water is the result of hydrant testing, Kearny says

By Mila Besich-Lira
Copper Basin News

Kearny residents were concerned this week when their tap water was coming out in shades of brown and black in some areas.

The change in the water color was due in part to two reasons, said Town Manager Anna Flores. The town was performing pressure testing of the fire hydrants and the testing brought up sediments in the line. Those sediments along with the normally high levels of manganese caused the dark water.

While the pressure testing happens on a regular basis, the water took on the darker shades because the water filtration system was not working. Flores explained that the filtration system should be up and running efficiently within five weeks. The water color should return to normal, Flores said, as the sediments from the pressure testing have once again settled. The water posed no health risk to anyone affected.

Questions or concerns about the water should be directed to Town Hall at 520-363-5547.

Mock shooting drill puts KPD on alert

By Mila Besich-Lira
Copper Basin News

Last week if you had a scanner you may have heard that there was an assault and shooter at Ray High School, if you didn't have a scanner, well, you know how that goes everyone in town thinks they knew what happened. What really happened on Tuesday morning was a drill, while the staff at the Town of Kearny knew a drill would happen at some point they did not know when or what the scenario would be.

On Tuesday morning, Judge Orzell along with myself got the scenario in motion. Judge Orzell called the police department and reported an assault and shooter at Ray High School, his call was followed up with a call from myself asking for information on tips the Copper Basin News received of a major incident at the school.

The drill helped all departments of the town learn how to work together in the event there was ever a major incident at the school or in town. It also helped us, as the media, learn how we will receive information and where we will go to get information from the public information officer, which in future events will be Judge Orzell.

No one was harmed in the drill and after a debriefing of everyone involved it was determined that there were some areas of improvement needed but that overall the police, fire and EMT's all responded in a safe and efficient manner. The major point that hit home for all involved was communication, using a clear voice, reporting all details as efficiently as possible and getting the information out to everyone as quickly as possible were all important areas discussed.

Lt. Blue, the acting chief for Kearny was instrumental in putting this drill together for KPD. Lt. Blue has helped in make many improvements at KPD during his interim tenure at the department.

On Sunday, that young soldier was honored as part of Honor and Remember's AZ Run for the Fallen, a three-day 146-mile journey from Tucson's Freedom Park to Phoenix's Wesley Bolin Memorial Plaza. The route taken by the relay team brought the runners north on Highway 77 to Highway 79 through Florence to the Hunt Highway and through San Tan Valley and Queen Creek to Baseline Rd. and then on to the State Capitol.

At each mile of the route, the run team stopped and honored one of the men and women who recently died in military service to America. The relay team was comprised of more than 20 active duty members of the military from bases throughout Arizona and other locations across the United States. Their goal was to create a memorial trail through Arizona, each Hero Marker tribute including a biographical description of the hero along with American and Honor and Remember flags.

Carson Ramsay was 22 when a car bomb was detonated outside a market in Baghdad on Oct. 10, 2004. Carson was a gunner and was riding on top of a Humvee in a convoy that was passing the marketplace. He was the only American casualty, but 10 others, all Iraqi nationals, were also killed.

Carson was born Jan. 4, 1982 and was raised just three miles north of Mammoth. He attended school in Kearny and was a member of the Ray High School MCJROTC. He enlisted in the Army in May 2001 before he graduated. He was a member of the 1st Cavalry Division

Local man honored for his part in ADEQ recognition

Daniel Radcliffe, Jr. ("Jr.") was recently recognized for his efforts as the Apache Junction Unified School District

Transportation Vehicle Emissions Inspector. Through his tireless efforts and outstanding work, the AJUSD fleet was awarded as "Fleet of the Year" by the Arizona Department of Environmental Quality (ADEQ).

Each year, ADEQ selects one entity in each area to honor from among all the diesel fleets that employ their own fleet inspectors. This includes school bus fleets, city bus fleets, concrete trucks, delivery vehicles and more. AJUSD earned the award for "Area A," which includes most of the greater Phoenix area.

"AJUSD has not purchased a bus for 12 years," commented superintendent Dr. Chad Wilson, "so the fact that they are still serviceable speaks to the quality of our transportation team. Receiving the award for 'Fleet of the Year' for clean emissions and clean air is a step beyond; it's just phenomenal. Kudos to Jr. and kudos to transportation. Well done and well deserved."

Radcliffe completes a breadth of courses each year to maintain his certification and is responsible for completing emissions testing for district vehicles, ensuring their compliance with Arizona Emissions Standards. He regularly calibrates and maintains the department Smoke Opacity Meter, which is subject to several random inspections by state auditors. He is also audited on his documentation and tested for his accuracy and has repeatedly received outstanding audit scores.

"We are proud of Jr.'s accomplishment and effort to ensure excellence in the inspection and maintenance of our fleet," stated transportation director Tom Thorpe. "This recognition just goes to show the quality our team is committed to."

Radcliffe is a resident of Kearny.

RUN FOR THE FALLEN

He was an avid outdoorsman. He hunted and fished and was planning on purchasing a Harley-Davidson motorcycle when his tour of duty ended in March 2005. In an interview with Copper Area News in 2004, his parents said that Carson's last message, left on their answering machine the Friday before he was killed, reminded his father, Cecil, to check on the motorcycle a man was holding for him in Kearny.

"He had said, 'Hi, I'm fine. Tell dad to check on the Harley again for me,'" his mother Elaine said.

"I still hadn't done it on Sunday," Cecil said.

Carson was injured earlier the same year in another IED bombing and had shrapnel embedded in his cheek. He was only out of the action for three days before he was back on the front lines.

Carson visited his family in June 2004 after his grandmother passed away.

"He was very upbeat," Cecil told Copper Area News. "One thing I've told everybody, when he got ready to go back I asked him, are you scared?"

Carson told his dad, "It's my job. I've got to go back."

"Whether he was real patriotic, he never told me," Cecil said. "He just told me, 'That's my job; I've got to go back and do it.' That impressed me."

"He's a hero to me," Cecil added.

Carson's a hero to all of us.

His Hero Marker can be found on Baseline Rd. between Hardy and Priest.

Carson's story and many others can be found online at www.azrunforthefallen.org. Visit the site and read the stories of many other (too many really) Arizona Heroes.

Editor's note: I was driving on Oracle Road in Tucson Friday when I encountered the AZ Run for the Fallen procession. It included a vehicle from the Florence Police Department.

Not having my computer with me, I immediately got on the phone with Ledger reporter Andrew Luberdia who helped research the group and find out their cause. Andy was able to track down where the group would be and on Saturday photographed them at one of the Hero Markers in San Tan Valley.

Later I was able to check the names of the Heroes and came across Carson Ramsey's name.

It's hard to believe it's been 10 years since that very hard interview Carson's parents so graciously gave. They invited me into their home to talk about their son even though the loss was so very new to them. They are amazing people who lost an amazing son.

The AZ Run for the Fallen relay team makes its way to the site of the next Hero Marker on Saturday. They carry three flags: American Flag, Arizona Flag and the Honor and Remember Flag.

Arizona Senator Commits to Resolution Land Swap Bill

Driving through Superior last week, I saw the boarded-up shops that line its Main Street. I spoke with residents of this small community, many of whom are struggling to find opportunities to better their lives and those of their families.

Just a few decades ago, this area, an hour east of Phoenix, was a busy mining community. But its economy bottomed out after the old Magma Copper Mine closed in 1995. Today, a quarter of its residents live below the poverty line. Their neighbors on the San Carlos Reservation are in worse shape, reportedly suffering from a 70 percent unemployment rate and a rampant drug-abuse problem.

Today, hope is on the horizon for this hard-hit community. Last month, Resolution Copper, a joint project of mining giants Rio Tinto and BHP Billiton, finished sinking a tunnel more than a mile underground, within reach of one of the top five undeveloped copper ore deposits in North America. It was a critically important development for this major job creator in one of Arizona’s most economically depressed rural areas.

The Resolution Copper project has the potential to utterly transform these communities. At full capacity, the mine could create as many as 4,000 jobs and produce roughly 25 percent of our nation’s domestic copper supply. Arizona as a whole will likely benefit from tens of billions of dollars in increased economic activity over the lifespan of the mine.

Last week, I traveled 1,100 feet down into the mine to meet some of the remarkable men and women working on this state-of-the-art project.

They are eager to see the project move forward and look forward to the day when

Unequal state education funding formula seen favoring charter schools over public schools

By James J. Hodl
Copper Area News

If it's Fall in Arizona, it also is school budget override initiative season. And this year's slate offered to voters in the north and east part of Pinal County includes override proposals for school districts in Queen Creek, Coolidge, Superior, Oracle and Kearny.

If such ballot initiatives seems to be coming with greater frequency, it is because voters in the recent down economy have been rejecting override requests, causing cash-strapped school districts to come back the next year to ask again. And this has led to weariness not only among voters but among school district administrators seeking to maintain the quality of education offered in their public schools and can get the necessary funds only through getting approval for budget overrides that are paid through increases in local property taxes.

According to Chuck Essigs, an executive with the Arizona Association of School Business Officials (AASBO), these early November dashes to the ballot box might not be needed if the state offered more equitable funding for public and charter schools. Arizona Legislature seems to favor charter schools over public schools when it comes to basic funding by providing charter schools with a higher per-pupil allocation than for public schools. During the 2013-14 school year, charter schools received basic per-pupil funding of $1,209 more ($5,053 for public school students in kindergarten through high school compared to $6,262 for charter students), according to statistics revealed by the Arizona Joint Legislative Budget Committee.

It is often claimed that Arizona lawmakers give charter schools a larger basic allocation because unlike public schools they cannot go to voters to get addition funding through a budget override. But that assumes that overrides are automatically approved by voters, which hasn't been the case since 2008 when the economy went into a downturn.

The current funding system seems to be driving a wedge between schools and voters, said Dr. Amy Fuller, superintendent of Florence Unified School District (FUSD).

"I believe the current system places a tremendous burden on public schools and on the voters. If public school districts were funded equal to charters we would be receiving a minimum of $1,600 more per student. FUSD has 8,522 students. We would not want to go for an override if we could obtain that additional funding that charter schools do,"

Fuller said.

"If there is no way to equalize the funding formula, then overrides should be for longer periods of time. That way public school districts could count on that funding for a longer period of time and make a significant difference in the lives of our students, faculty, staff, and communities," she added.

FUSD is not going for an override this year, having had its proposal rejected in the previous two years.

Dennis Blauser, superintendent of the Oracle Elementary School District (OESD), agreed. "It costs time and effort to get an override initiative on the ballot and to promote it to voters. That could be better spent on educational efforts in the schools," Blauser said.

OESD does not have local competition from charter schools, but has seen some of its top students transferring to Basis in Oro Valley.

Patrick O'Donnell, superintendent of the Superior Unified School District (SUSD), said his schools have recently lost 24 students to vouchers. These students transferred mostly to religious schools but also a nearby school offering music education, which SUSD had to drop due to budget constraints.

"As the state funds schools on a per-pupil basis but the funding must cover all school expenditures, loss of a student means there will be fewer dollars to pay for things like teacher salaries, school maintenance and transportation," O'Donnell said.

Charter school administrators, however, believe that charter schools are the ones being shortchanged.

"There are buckets of money available to public schools beyond the basic state allocations that charter schools cannot access," complained Eileen B. Sigmund, CEO of the Arizona Charter School Association (ACSA). "These include access to property tax revenues, bonds, transportation stipends; so charters get less money to do their job."

"This is because the legislature created School Choice but has opted not to fund School Choice," she added.

"In addition to bond and override monies, public school districts have facilities board monies to build their buildings which charters do not. That means that a large percentage of charter funding must go toward providing a building whereas this is not the case for public district schools," said Dr. Lynn Robershotte, administrator of EduPrize Schools, which operates a charter in Queen Creek.

"The monies that we receive are highly restricted, which means they must be spent on specific things/programs, etc. Charters are audited every year to ensure financial compliance. Overall, public school districts receive in excess of $1,600 more per student than charters," she added.

This is borne out, she said, by the same Joint Legislative Budget Committee report which indicates that when all funding available to schools to totaled, public school districts have $8,992 per pupil to spend while charters have only $7,460 per pupil. This includes additional funding to public schools for maintenance and operations, school facilities, debt services, and federal funding for special needs programs. Charter schools get additional funding for general, federal, state and classroom site projects.

Public schools counter that some of these additional funds come from overrides, which are not a sure thing, especially those districts in lower income areas. (Some snide folks add that some school district overrides are failing because parents of charter school students are

It is autumn; there is a slight change in weather and people are anxious for community activities to get underway. All the activities sponsored by the Copper Basin Chamber have changed in dates and format. "Celebrating Our Heritage" is the theme for 2014-2015.

Oktoberfest, as it has been known for many years, is now the Fall Festival, and, this year, is planned to be the usual mix of fearsome fiends and family fun, only minus the Car Show. This year, the Street Fair will be combined with Trunk or Treat, Great Pumpkin, a Halloween movie and Haunted House on Saturday, Oct. 25.

Your favorite vendor booths, with arts and crafts and food will open at 11 a.m. in the mall area. The ever-popular Great Pumpkin sponsored by the Junior Chamber students will be in front of the Pinal County Building at 4 p.m. As each age group goes through the Pumpkin's mouth, they can proceed to the cars or booths that are lined up to hand out treats.

After the Great Punkin, head over to the Pinal County Building for "A Twisted Tale Haunted House," sponsored by Ray Federal Credit Union. Cost is $3 per living soul to enter.

If haunted houses aren't your thing and you might prefer a nice scary movie, why not stick around for the free movie on the street, "Godzilla." All the mayhem you can stand.

Halloween Trick or Treat is Friday, Oct. 31 for Copper Basin children and on Saturday, Nov. 1 there will be an adult Halloween Costume Dance at the Elks Lodge sponsored by the Copper Basin Chamber, Elks and Ray Federal Credit Union. Check out the ad on Page 5 for more information.

School override referendums up on Nov. 4; Ray District asking for 10 percent override

By James Hodl
Copper Area News

Five area school districts will be asking voters to approve budget overrides that will grant the district the power to secure additional funding of up to 15 percent over the allocation from the Arizona legislature through an increase in local property taxes. The Queen Creek Unified School District (QCUSD) is asking voters for the third time in as many years to approve a 15 percent override and to approve an $80 million bond issue for new construction, upgrading of existing school buildings, and replacement of aging school buses. Enactment of both the override and the bond issue will result in a property tax levy of $1.06 per $100,000 valuation. QCUSD Superintendent Tom Lindsey is confident that the two issues will pass. The override would create $2.5 million in additional funding that could be used to restore the electives, offer full-day kindergarten in elementary schools, and provide teachers will a long postponed pay raise.

Coolidge Unified School District (CUSD) is asking voters for the first time since 2012 to approve a 10 percent override for its maintenance and operations budget. With the second lowest starting salary for teachers in the state, CUSD needs the override to offer higher salaries attract talented instructors and to provide pay raises to current teachers to retain the best ones, and to be competitive in attracted teachers for our most gifted students, said Superintendent Charie Wallace. To win approval, Wallace is undergoing a grueling schedule of campaign appearances ranging from political dinners to civic organizations to even an appearance in a local family tavern where the district's Power Point presentation was reduced to printed cards to accommodate the location's lack of Internet access. Voter approval of the override will boost the CUSD budget by $1.7 million, and boost the property tax only 94 cents per $100,000 valuation.

The Oracle Elementary School District (OESD), which in 2013 came only 52 votes short of approving a 15 percent override, is trying again on Nov. 4. OESD needs the full override funding to maintain the current level of instructional programs. To put the override over the top this year, the district is casting a wider net in search of voters, and OESD Superintendent Dennis Blauser is highly confident that the override will pass this year. The override will add only about 24 cents per $100,000 of property valuation.

The Superior Unified School District (SUSD) is also seeking continuation of its existing 15 percent override. As SUSD is in the fifth year of its current override, the district needs approval in November to keep its budget from being cut by $70,000 next year, said SUSD Superintendent Patrick O'Donnell. Approval of the override will keep the schools' share of the local property tax at $1.34 per $100,000 property valuation.

The Ray Unified School District (RUSD) in Kearny is asking voters to approve a 10 percent tax override to keep from having to trim its budget and educational programs. RUSD Superintendent Curt Cook is keeping the override campaign on a low-key person-to-person level to get education-supporting voters out on election day. Approval of the Ray override will keep the schools' share of the local property tax at $1.06 per $100,000 property valuation.

Lobos end season with loss to Panthers

By Andrew Luberda
Copper Basin News

The Hayden football team closed out its regular season with a shutout loss to Superior last Friday night. The ninth-ranked Panthers defeated the Lobos, 58 – 0.

The Lobos finished their season with a record of 2 – 6, including 1 – 4 in sectional play. Their record this season was identical to 2013; however, the Lobos were winless in sectional play last year, improving this year by one win.

Although the Lobos may not have experienced the desired results in 2014, the future promises to yield better outcomes.

This season's roster was filled with mostly underclassmen who earned valuable playing experience that will pay dividends in the future. The Lobos don't have to look past last week's opponent to find a blueprint of how the experience of this season can be beneficial next year.

Superior won a single game last year, ironically against the Lobos, with a roster filled with freshmen and sophomores just like the Lobos this season. The experience gained last year by the younger players propelled the Panthers into the playoffs this season, finishing with a record of 5 – 3. They enter the playoffs later this week as the ninth-ranked team in Division VI.

The Lobos could be in a similar spot next year.

Bearcats ready for playoffs after finale win

By Andrew Luberda
Copper Basin News

The Ray football team ended its regular season with a road win last Friday night, defeating Arête Prep, 62 – 14. The victory over the Chargers snapped a two-game losing streak.

The Bearcats finished in second place in Section IV, one game behind Sectional Champion and fourth-ranked, Gilbert Christian.

The Bearcats, who finished the regular season with a record of 5 – 3, are ranked sixth in the final AIA rankings and will host the 11th-ranked Salome Frogs on Saturday, October 25, 2014, in a first-round playoff game.

With a win versus the Frogs, the 'Cats will travel to Pima to take on the third-ranked Roughriders on November 1.

Saturday's game is scheduled for 6:00 p.m.

SCHOOL FUNDING

voting against them.)

Also some of these additional budget items are targeted federal funds to provide educational services from which charters are exempt under state law. These are the programs for students with special needs, are disabled or who need to learn English. Public schools also participate in the federal school lunch program and in some rural areas also provide breakfasts for some students.

Other advantages charter schools have over public schools is that charters can limit class size, noted AASBO's Essigs. Public schools have to accommodate every student in its territory, even if it means classes with more than 40 students. And they have to accept students with learning disabilities.

Charter schools can expel students who fall behind classmates in a given subject. According to articles in The Wall Street Journal and the Washington Post, it is not unusual for some for-profit charter schools to graduate eighth grade classes with only a third as many students as who enrolled in the fifth grade. Poor students getting the boot return to public schools, lowering achievement levels, the newspapers insinuated.

And while public schools have to be tuition free, charter schools that are short of funds can ask parents for donations, Essigs added.

Tired of pushing override initiatives to an increasingly less receptive citizenry, some school districts have opted to get increased basic budgets by converting public schools into charter schools. This gambit was pioneered by the school district in Cave Creek a few years ago and its success spawned others to go that route. This year alone, 24 public schools converted to charters; 11 of them in the Paradise Valley Unified School District alone. As some lawmakers feared this tactic would eventually bust the state education budget, legislation was enacted halting public to charter conversions.

The same bill requires those schools that converted in the previous two years to return to public school status and funding levels.

At the time the legislation was introduced, FUSD was considering turning one of its schools into a district-run charter, Fuller said.

Both public school district and charter school administrators agree with one statement by ACSA's Sigmund: "The 34-year-old Arizona system of school financing is broken and needs to be rebuilt."

Low funding rates have prompted schools to get creative in how they spend what revenues they have. Some charter schools have banded together to locate bargains for school equipment. One found a warehouse of surplus desks in Flagstaff and snapped them up dimes on a dollar.

The biggest concern of schools beyond having to trim advanced programs and increase class sizes is the ability to retain and continue to attract quality teachers.

their friends, neighbors and family members can enjoy the benefits of the mine's operation. They are excited by the potential to grow the workforce supporting the mine and, buoyed by its development, additional opportunities to buy or build a home in Superior, or open a small business, restaurant, or day care in town.

We also discussed how Resolution Copper has already invested more than $1 billion in its facility, with much of that going to Arizona contractors, and how important it is that Arizonans help build momentum and support for the mine.

Today, all that is required to bring this project to fruition is for Congress to pass a bill introduced by Sen. Jeff Flake, Congressman Paul Gosar and me that would let the mine expand its footprint onto land owned by the federal government.

The bill, the Southeast Arizona Land Exchange and Conservation Act, has support from both Republicans and Democrats — a rare feat in Congress today. But it has faced opposition by a minority of environmental groups and Native American tribes who claim that the legislation somehow exempts the mine from laws protecting the environment or sacred tribal sites.

But Resolution Copper is already fully adhering to these laws, having filed its formal mine plan nearly a year ago. That action makes important information about the mine, like predicted water consumption and where the mine's tunneling will be constructed, open to the public and subject to thorough analysis by federal agencies.

I am committed to passing that bill, and I believe it's not a question of if our state will seize this tremendous opportunity, but when. It's past time for our state and nation to tap into this potential and help Arizonans in depressed areas like Superior realize a more prosperous future.

“Our teachers haven’t received a raise in seven years. They are doing an outstanding job and deserve to be rewarded,” said Sherry Dorothy, superintendent of the Miami Unified School District.

FUSD’s Fuller agreed, noting that when she first entered teaching 30 years ago her initial salary was $30,000 a year and that currently the average salary of a FUSD teacher is only $38,753 (the US average is $49,720). She added that in Pinal County 43 percent of teachers have left the county for better wages or simply leaving the profession. If nothing is done to correct the situation, the county will lose many great highly qualified teachers.

“Extra-curricular activities including sports, music, science clubs and others are expensive to run. Better technology is a great need and is not funded by the state. If we want our children to compete with the world, they need a global education, not a basic education,” Fuller said. “Charters also are effected greatly by the reduction in state funding and budgeting restrictions,” EduPrize’s Robershotte said. “EduPrize has not reduced its special programs but instead provides state of the art technology labs, arts, science labs, and hands-on Live a Learning Labs where children go beyond basic instruction in the sciences to full application of content through creation and analysis of project based learning. While we greatly value low student to teacher ratios, we have had to add an average of two students per classroom to combat the financial cut backs.”

Other charter schools are likewise reporting a need for qualified teachers, though ads for positions don’t offer salaries much higher than public schools are offering.

For now, area school districts will concentrate on getting budget overrides enacted to bring their budgets up to at least par with charter schools in their areas. Queen Creek Unified School District (QCUSD) Superintendent Tom Lindsey said he was cautiously optimistic his district’s joint 15 percent override and construction bond issue campaign will succeed. Already with an “A” rating for its quality of education, Lindsey said that with the right level of support, QCUSD could have the best schools in the state.

But for the future, all districts are looking toward getting the Arizona legislature next year (when it will have about 30 percent new members) to approve higher basic budgets for all state-supported schools.

There also is interest in the court case where Judge Katherine Cooper ruled that the legislature violated the will of the voter in raising education expenditures by the rate of inflation or 2 percent
