2022 General Election Round Up

There were many races close to home that many awaited results, with so many races too close to call and an abundance of day-of-election voters who dropped their mail in ballots at the polls, that vote tallies took several days.

The countywide sales tax increase, Proposition 469 also known as the Pinal Regional Transportation Tax, did not pass. The proposition failed by 2,464 votes. The Superior and SaddleBrooke West precincts supported the proposition, but voters across the county and in the Copper Corridor communities such as Kearny, Mammoth, Oracle and San Manuel, residents voted mostly against the sales tax increase. Had the proposition passed, the taxes generated would have allocated $10 million for each of the smaller Towns (Kearny, Mammoth, Superior and Eloy) while also helping to construct new north-south and east-west corridors across the county which would help ease traffic congestion between job centers.

Voters in Kearny approved the Home Rule Option (proposition 475), which allows the town to spend above the State of Arizona expenditure limitations. Without the approval of the home rule, the Town would not be able to spend grant funding or other funding that does not come from

As predicted, many of the statewide election results were not final and most races were not called for almost a week past the Nov. 8 Election Day. While many express relief that the never-ending political commercials were over, voters waited in suspense to learn who would win the statewide offices of Governor, Secretary of State, Attorney General and Superintendent of Public Instruction. The race between Senator Mark Kelly and Blake Masters also took several days to call, with the Associated Press finally declaring Senator Kelly the winner on Saturday.

As of press time, Katie Hobbs, the Democratic candidate, won the seat of Governor against Kari Lake. On Saturday, the Associated Press also declared that Adrian Fontes won the seat for Secretary of State defeating Mark Finchem, who campaigned as an election denier. Kris Mayes remained in the lead against Abe Hamadeh for the position of Attorney General. Kathy Hoffman and Tom Horne battled back and forth, both taking their turns being in the lead for the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. At press time Republican Tom Horne was back in the lead with a 6,556-vote lead. The Attorney General and Superintendent of Public Instruction races were still too close to call and may be forced into a recount.

Voters in the Copper Corridor will also have a new Congressman – Eli Crane who defeated incumbent Tom O'Halleran. Crane won the seat with a 25,990-lead. When the Copper Corridor was redistricted into Congressional District 2, many predicted that the newly drawn district would be favorable to Republican candidates. O'Halleran has served the Copper Corridor area and Congressional District 1 since 2017.

At the State House, voters in the Copper Corridor will be represented by Senator Wendy Rodgers and Representatives David Cook and David Marshall. Rep. Cook a resident of Globe, also served as the representative for the area when he was elected to Legislative District 8. Following the redistricting, he was eligible to run in the newly formed Legislative District 7.

San Carlos Apache Tribe and Gaming Enterprise provides relief to Hayden

Each year the San Carlos Apache Tribe and Apache Gold Casino Resort sets aside funding, which is commonly known as 12D Funding. This funding is distributed to surrounding cities, towns, and/or county non-profit organizations on an annual basis through a stringent selection process.

In years past, applications would be submitted and they would select three recipients; but this year, like so many other local businesses and non-profit organizations, the San Carlos Apache Gaming Enterprise (SCAGE) had unique challenges from recovering in 2020. Although, they stayed committed and awarded a well-deserved non-profit organization and this year they were only able to give it to the Town of Hayden in the amount $24,118.24; the additional funding will assist in replacing old radios and communications equipment.

The partnership with the Town of Hayden dates back many years, so it only seemed fitting to reach out with some financial assistance through the town's police department. The Town of Hayden police department mutual aid area encompasses 450 square miles, which includes the Apache Sky Casino and surrounding communities of Dudleyville, Kearny, Mammoth and San Manuel.

Hayden officials investigating recent fires

In less than a month, the Town of Hayden has dealt with three structure fires in the downtown area of Hayden. These structures were abandoned and did not have anyone living or operating a business in these structures; no one was injured in the fires.

Hayden Fire Department has been assisted by Winkelman Fire, Kearny Fire, Dudleyville Fire and Pinal Rural Fire & Medical District during these fires. The fires have left these buildings in further ruin as the current owners have not kept the buildings in good repair for many years. Many of the buildings have multiple floors including basements which have added to the complexities of fighting the fires, requiring the fire departments to stay on scene for multiple days until all embers are out and fires adequately extinguished with fire.

According to Hayden Town Code, the owners of the buildings are required to secure and rebuild the structures following these types of disasters.

Hayden Police Sergeant Kevin Heaslip reported that the fires are all considered suspicious and are under investigation.

Firefighters from Hayden and neighboring fire departments battle a blaze in the old Gila Furniture Building in Hayden. This was one of several suspected arson fires in the area.
