Pinal County offers holiday safety tips for leftover food

FLORENCE - The Pinal County Public Health Services District, Environmental Health Services would like to wish everyone a safe and happy holiday season. Holidays are times we share the kitchen with family and friends. With all the food being prepared as we celebrate, having leftover food is inevitable. Proper handling of leftover foods is one of the best things you can do to keep your family and friends safe from food-borne illness.

Put Foods Away Promptly

While everyone is busy celebrating, it is very easy to overlook the foods sitting on the counter or on the dinner table. Everyone is stuffed from their holiday meal and it can be difficult to find motivation to clean up. Also, there is a lot of temptation to leave foods out so we can nibble on them or so they may be available for guests who arrive late. The one thing that should be prioritized after the meal is to put the foods away. The "danger zone" is between 41°F and 135°F - the temperature range where food-borne bacteria multiply rapidly. The time that food sits on the counter should be minimized and certainly should not exceed two hours. Be sure your refrigerator holds a temperature at or below 41°F.

Safe Cooling

A lot of us assume that once food is put into the refrigerator that it is safe. Even after you put foods into the refrigerator it can still stay in the temperature danger zone for a significant period of time - allowing bacteria to multiply. Cooling the food down rapidly is very important to prevent illness. Here are a few hints to help you cool down your foods rapidly. 1) Keep the portion sizes small. Try to limit the depth of leftover foods to less than four inches. Realize that the outside of the food will cool first, but it can still take quite a while for the interior to cool down. 2) Keep the food uncovered until it is cold. This allows the cold air to flow across the surface of the food. The air flow is just as important as the temperature in cooling foods down. 3) Don't overload your refrigerator. Ensure there is adequate space to allow for air to circulate around cooling foods. 4) Don't hesitate to check food temperatures in your refrigerator

Olmos earns CDA renewal

Teresita Martinez Olmos of Hayden has been awarded a renewal of the Preschool Child Development Associate (CDA) credential in recognition of outstanding work with young children.

The Council for Professional Recognition in Washington DC awards credentials to early childhood educators who demonstrate the ability to constructively work with young children in group settings.

"It takes special knowledge, skills, and expertise to be an effective teacher of young children," says Valora Washington, CEO of the Council. "It's a great honor to earn a CDA and it shows a commitment to quality early childhood education."

The CDA is a nationally recognized credential for excellence in early childhood education. Each CDA candidate is observed working with young children and is assessed on his or her ability to develop the physical, emotional, and intellectual capabilities of young children. The CDA community nationwide is having a positive effect on the quality of early childhood education by helping preschools, day care centers, and family child care programs hire qualified and competent professionals who ensure the best care for our nation's youngest.

Teresita is the daughter of Mike and Carmen Martinez of Hayden, wife of Gilbert Michael Olmos of Hayden and has a son, Jude M. Olmos also of Hayden. Teresita is employed by Pinal Gila Community Child Services, Inc. and works as a teacher at the Superior Head Start. She earned her Master of Arts in Early Childhood Education in 2008 from the University of Phoenix.

Superior's first mailman remembers Post Office as building turns 50

By John Hernandez
Copper Area News

On Oct. 28, 2015, the Superior Post Office building turned 50 years old. The post office used to be across the alley from the bank on Main Street before moving to its present location in 1965. The Superior Post Office moved to its present location at the same time they started mail delivery for customers. The first letter carrier was Carlos "Charlie" Casillas. When he started, Louis Acosta was the Postmaster. Louis was a miner and he later resigned to go back to work for Magma.

Charlie then worked for Gladys Walker. Charlie said that back then, the Postmaster job was a political appointment position. Charlie helped Gladys run the office as the Assistant Postmaster. Not everyone in Superior wanted mail delivery and many continued to pick up their mail at the post office.

"It was rough in the beginning because it was something brand new," said Charlie.

The routes had to be laid out. He remembered one street was unmarked and only had two houses on it. They called it Un-named Street and later just UN Street. Charlie said that later on, Pat Contreras petitioned the Town of Superior for a name change and it is now known as Contreras Street.

"I got to know all the people and the dogs (on the route)," said Charlie.

One little girl used to draw pictures and put them in the mail box. There was a nice lady that would leave him a pitcher of cold water. Charlie remembered Beto Cervantes' grandfather, Rafael. Rafael was blind and used to live in a tiny house. He always left the door open. Rafael would hear him coming and ask him in Spanish, "Is it you Carlitos?" He would then tell him to come in. It was against postal regulations for a mailman to enter

ADOT's Thanksgiving safety message: Be patient, don't speed when out on state's highways

PHOENIX – Make sure you pack some patience and play it smart when heading out on the highways for Thanksgiving weekend.

Doing so could save your life, as last year's was the deadliest Thanksgiving weekend on state highways and local roads in the past decade. The toll a year ago: 18 people killed, six of them in crashes involving impaired drivers.

The Arizona Department of Transportation and other safety agencies, including the Arizona Department of Public Safety and Governor's Office of Highway Safety, are urging drivers to keep their speed in check, buckle up and avoid distractions, especially texting while driving.

To help holiday travelers and promote safety, ADOT won't allow any construction-related closures along state highways over the Thanksgiving weekend. The agency will be working to help DPS, local fire and medical emergency agencies and towing companies respond to incidents along state highways as quickly as possible.

ADOT will position heavy equipment, trucks and crews at locations along several of the state's busier travel highways starting Wednesday, Nov. 25. For example, equipment such as front loaders and incident-response trucks will be positioned along Interstate 17 in the Anthem area south of Black Canyon City, Interstate 10 near Queen Creek Road southeast of Phoenix and along State Route 87 at the Saguaro Lake turnoff north of Fountain Hills.

On ADOT's electronic signs along highways, travelers will see messages about slowing down and driving sober.

Drivers also should get a good night's rest before traveling, check their vehicles' tire pressure and be prepared for unscheduled closures due to crashes or disabled vehicles. Staying up to date on weather conditions and packing an emergency preparedness kit, with items such as blankets, flashlights, extra clothes, drinking water and snack foods, is another smart idea.

For the latest highway conditions across Arizona, travelers can visit ADOT's Travel Information site at az511.gov or call 5-1-1 (outside Arizona call 1-888-411-ROAD). ADOT's Twitter feed (@ArizonaDOT) also provides information about closures and highway conditions.

Additional information about winter driving, ADOT's snowplows and items to include in an emergency kit can be found at azdot.gov/KnowSnow.

FOOD SAFETY

after an hour or two to ensure that the food is cooling down rapidly.

Safe Reheating

Reheating is another important step in handling leftover foods. Use a food thermometer to ensure that leftovers are thoroughly heated. Make sure the food reaches a safe minimum internal temperature of 165°F. Bacteria can survive in leftovers that have not reached 165°F, possibly resulting in food-borne illness. Also, keep in mind that if foods are left in the temperature danger zone too long, even reheating them thoroughly may not be enough to ensure the food will not cause an illness.

Use Leftovers Quickly

Use your leftovers promptly. They should either be eaten or frozen for later use within about four days. Incorporate your holiday leftovers into your meal plans and recipes. Some of the best parts of a holiday turkey are the turkey sandwiches, turkey soup, and turkey 'al-la-king' that many of us enjoy in the days after the main meal. As soon as you know you won't have an immediate use for leftovers, put them in the freezer for later use. Frozen food will keep for much longer than refrigerated foods.

If In Doubt, Throw It Out!

If you ever have any reason to feel that your food is not safe don't hesitate to throw it away. The issues that cause disease in foods, such as bacteria, viruses, and toxins, are not always apparent. They are typically colorless and odorless. Keep this food safety saying in mind, 'If in doubt, throw it out!'

The Pinal County Public Health Services District has a goal to prevent disease, promote health, and provide nutrition services to the residents of Pinal County. Environmental Health Services conducts inspections of permitted facilities, monitors the community for disease vectors, and investigates public health nuisance complaints. If you would like more information on our programs, or to file a complaint, please visit our webpage at <http://pinalcountyaz.gov/ehs> or call 866-287-0209.

a home, but Charlie made an exception for Mr. Cervantes.

An opening for a Postal Inspector position came up. Charlie applied and was accepted. He traveled to Washington, D.C. for three months of training. He was then assigned to an office in San Diego. He would later work in Long Beach (California), Los Angeles, El Paso and San Antonio. He was involved in many interesting investigations including a mail bombing suspect in Denver and the murder of a letter carrier in San Antonio.

During the Vietnam War,

some soldiers were mailing drugs to the United States, mostly hashish. He worked undercover in Los Angeles to catch a clerk that was selling marijuana. Charlie also served President of the Federal Criminal Investigators Association of El Paso.

Charlie Casillas was born and raised in Superior. As a kid he used to sell the Superior Sun. He graduated from Superior High School in 1959. He worked for Leo's Grocery and later for Foxworth Galbraith Lumber Yard. His experience delivering groceries and lumber supplies for those local businesses helped him learn the town's streets when he became the mail delivery man. He remembered training Florence Aldrete on the delivery routes when she was a part time letter carrier.

Charlie met his wife, the former Jessie Sandoval of Ray-Sonora, while playing guitar in a rock and roll band called the Rivals.

The band was playing a dance in Sonora. They got married in Kearny and had the reception at Los Reyes Club. They now live in San Antonio; have two sons, a daughter and two granddaughters. Charlie's sister Rosie Young still lives in Superior so Charlie and the family come to visit.
