OBITUARIES

Kenneth Andrew Guyton

Kenneth Andrew Guyton was born in Tucson Sept. 6, 1966. Oracle was his home from April 1967 until he passed from this world, Nov. 14, 2020, to his forever home with Jesus Christ, who he dearly loved.

He liked hunting, scouting and camping with his mother, Margaret, and dad, Moody; brothers Robert (Ginger) and Richard (Heidi); nephews and nieces, Kassie, Kimberly, Allissa, Mason and Brent; along with friends.

As a youngster he played Little League and rode horses, maintaining many lasting friendships. After finishing school at Canyon Del Oro High School, he began building race engines and later building Oracle Transport Trucking Inc. He had a love for speed like race cars, sand rails, anything he could build in power.

A memorial for Kenny will be Saturday, Nov. 28, 10 a.m., outside, on the property belonging to Moody and Margaret Guyton, 1210 W. American Ave., Oracle.

Delays on State Route 77 in Winkelman to begin Nov. 30

Motorists who use the Gila River Bridge on State Route 77 in Winkelman should expect intermittent delays starting Monday, Nov. 30, while bridge girders are placed on the west side of the new bridge.

Crews will need to close the bridge occasionally for about 15 minutes at a time Monday through Friday during daytime hours.

The work is expected to take up to 10 days, with about four girders being placed per day.

Law enforcement will help direct traffic.

Drivers should proceed through the work zone with caution, slow down and watch for construction personnel and equipment.

For more information, please visit the project website.

Schedules are subject to change based on weather and other unforeseen factors. For more information, please call the ADOT Bilingual Project Information Line at 855.712.8530 or go to azdot.gov/contact and select Projects from the drop-down menu. For real-time highway conditions statewide, visit ADOT's Traveler Information Site at www.az511.gov, follow ADOT on Twitter (@ArizonaDOT) or call 511, except while driving.

Construction has steadily progressed on the Winkelman Bridge. Starting next week, bridge girders will be installed.

Oracle School District Extends Online Learning For Now

Oracle Elementary School District Community, Last week, our Governing Board approved the District's recommendation to continue distance learning at Mountain Vista K-8 School. The District made this recommendation for three reasons. First, we told our community that we would welcome all of our students back to campus when it was safe and responsible to do so. Second, the Pinal Health County Department does not recommend a return to traditional, in-person learning at this time. Third, the number of confirmed COVID-19 cases in our zip code and community continues to increase rather than decrease.

We recognize that if we have an outbreak of COVID-19 at our school we will be required to close our entire campus. A COVID-19 related closure would require each of the students in our Cares Program to learn from home and suspend our ability to deliver free breakfast and lunch to students. We understand that our Cares Program and meal deliveries are important to our community. In our best effort to prevent an outbreak, we will continue to strictly enforce our mitigation procedures and follow the most updated guidance from the Arizona Department of Health.

Toys for Christmas

Folks in Oracle didn't let the unlucky day of Friday the 13th scare them away from a toy drive. In fact, the drive was a big success. The Toy Drive held at the Dollar General finished the day with four truckloads of toys for kids of all ages. On Saturday, Dec. 13, 2020, at 6:30 p.m., the Oracle Community Center will be hosting a Christmas Toy Drive-Through gift giveaway. Patrons can drive or walk through the Oracle Community Center to pick up a gift and enjoy the Christmas trees, lights and caroling.

ORACLE SCHOOLS

I want each person reading this letter to know that whether we are in-person or online, it is our job at Mountain Vista to prepare our students for the next grade level. We will not wait until the students return to the classroom to teach the "really great lesson that helps students better understand fractions." We will use our resources to bring our best lessons to your child while they are at home or in our Cares Program. To accomplish this, your child's teacher might send home new math manipulatives, additional supplies, or hands-on gadgets that will help increase student engagement and concept mastery.

With tremendous support from the Oracle Schools Foundation, we are also creating an online "Parent Academy" which will include a series of informational videos created by our school staff and available on the district website. Each episode will be designed to support parents during distance learning. We know that distance learning is not easy for students, staff, or families and we want to do our best to help answer questions including, "What does my student mean when he says it is time for Domain?" or "I did not learn math this way, why is my kid not carrying the one?"

Our Governing Board will revisit information from the Pinal County Health Department and discuss a possible return date for in-person learning during the Jan. 21, 2021 Governing Board meeting.

I will continue to be transparent with our community and committed to protecting the safety of our students and staff.

Oracle State Park: Great for walkers and winged things

Many enjoy waking to bird song. Others love birds so much they will take classes and plan trips based on their ability to view unusual species. Some people won't go to another country, but will go so far as to bring birds inside their home to enjoy their beauty close up. How far will you go?

In his book Birds and Poets (With Other Papers), author John Burroughs stated, "It might almost be said that the birds are all birds of the poets and of no one else, because it is only the poetical temperament that fully responds to them. So true is this, that all the great ornithologists—original namers and biographers of the birds—have been poets in deed if not in word. Audubon is a notable case in point, who, if he had not the tongue or the pen of the poet, certainly had the eye and ear and heart—"the fluid and attaching character"—and the singleness of purpose, the enthusiasm, the unworldliness, the love, that characterize the true and divine race of bards."

Mr. Burroughs went on, a short couple of paragraphs later, to say, "The very idea of a bird is a symbol and a suggestion to the poet. A bird seems to be at the top of the scale, so vehement and intense is his life,—large-brained, large-lunged, hot, ecstatic, his frame charged with buoyancy and his heart with song. The beautiful vagabonds, endowed with every grace, masters of all climes, and knowing no bounds,—how many human aspirations are realized in their free, holiday lives, and how many suggestions to the poet in their flight and song!"

To read more of John Burroughs opinions on birds, poets and how they best flock together, you may visit Project Gutenberg online at: www.gutenberg.org/files/5177/5177-h/5177-h.htm.

To learn more of birds, while books are wonderful sources of information, the Oracle State Park is fairly near and teeming with up-close and personal experiences for those who are willing to go just far enough to hear the bird song while rubbing elbows with the many types of bird admirers. Not only will you exercise your brain, but, you will take in lungfuls of fresh air and exercise for your body, as well. November is a great time to start, because, in Pinal County, it really is for the birds! You don't have to be a published poet to visit them in their natural habitat, either. Simply read on, reserve your spot and show up prepared to find delight for heart and eye.

Mondays in November are dedicated to COVID-Safe Guided Bird Walks, which start at 8:15 a.m. Space is limited to five participants per walk. You must call ahead to make a reservation. Everyone must agree to wear a mask and socially distance on the trail during the entire guided bird walk.

Join volunteer guide, Mary Ellen, at Oracle State Park each Monday morning. Meet at the Kannally Ranch House upper patio. The bird walk is free for AZ State Parks Annual Pass holders, or with park admission of $7 per vehicle. The last COVID-Conscious Bird Walk in November is scheduled on Monday, Nov. 30. Call Oracle State Park to make a reservation: (520) 896-2425. Call the same number to discover the dates for bird walks in December.

If you want to do more, or different, the on-going daily self-guided tours of the historic Kannally Ranch House might be more what sends you soaring. Visit the park's Solarium Gift Shop, and take a self-guided tour through the multi-level Kannally family home. The Mediterranean-Revival Style ranch house built from 1929-1933, is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Wearing a mask is mandatory in all state buildings. A maximum of six individuals are allowed to tour the house at one time. Social distancing along with masks - without exception- are required to tour the historic Kannally Ranch House.

Due to the changing of the seasons, Oracle State Park has new hours, beginning Thursday, Oct. 1, when the park will be open from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. The Kannally Ranch House Gift Shop will be open from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. The Mt. Lemmon Road Entrance Gate will close at 4 p.m. and the Exit Gate will be closed and locked at 5 p.m. As always, the American Avenue Trailhead is open daily, sunrise to sunset for hikers, equestrians and mountain bikers; and nightly for stargazers. No camping in tent or vehicle, no water is available and no fires are allowed.

In the aforementioned book, Burroughs goes on to recall a poem by a man named Hogg, which seems a fitting ending for writing about birds in Oracle State Park: "Bird of the wilderness, Blithesome and cumberless, Sweet be thy matin o'er moorland and lea! Emblem of happiness, Blest is thy dwelling-place — Oh to abide in the desert with thee!"

Have a lovely visit!

Florence Prison and the Mexican Revolution Part 2

Copper Area News has received some articles from a former corrections officer from Arizona State Prison. This retired officer spent 25 years with the Arizona Department of Corrections working all custody levels from juvenile detention units to Death Row. The author wishes to remain anonymous. He hopes to provide the readers with a view of what it is like working with inmates and what life is like behind prison walls.

INTRODUCTION

The job of a corrections officer is not easy. The nature of the job, working with men or women behind bars can be stressful. Working in high custody units can add to the stress. The Arizona Department of Corrections has a high staff turnover rate. One in five staff members quit within the first couple of years of being hired or use the training and experience they receive to transfer to Sheriff departments or Federal corrections.

Maximum custody inmates are either there because they are doing long sentences, are convicted of violent crimes or they are problem inmates while in prison. Inmates on Death Row are under a sentence of death and have nothing to lose by acting out against staff or other inmates. Officers must always be on the alert to prevent these inmates from harming other inmates or staff. To understand the type of inmates that are housed on Death Row, I will provide you with a few of their stories, the crimes they committed and some of their prison life.

BEHIND THE WALLS

Stories from Arizona State Prison
Compiled by John Hernandez

Thomas Rynning

Thomas Rynning was many things in his adventurous life. He was a cowboy in Texas and a soldier in the Eighth US Cavalry fighting Apaches in Arizona. He joined the Rough Riders and fought with Teddy Roosevelt in the Cuban Campaign during the Spanish American War. From 1902 to 1907, Rynning served as Captain of the Arizona Rangers. It was in this position that Rynning played a part in setting a spark which would ignite into the Mexican Revolution.

On June 1, 1906, Mexican miners went on strike at the American-owned Cananea Consolidated Copper Company in Cananea, Sonora Mexico. The strikers demanded an eight-hour work day. They protested racial discrimination and wanted equal pay. At the time, American Caucasian workers were being paid 5 pesos per day while Mexican workers received 3.50 pesos a day for the same work. There were over 2,000 Americans working in Cananea. In Mexican history, the Cananea mining strike of 1906 is considered by many to be the beginning of the Mexican Revolution. It was a dramatic example of increasing opposition to the regime of Porfirio Diaz. It not only gave birth to the Mexican labor movement but helped launch a revolution.

Some historians say that the Flores Magon brothers, Ricardo and Enrique organized the strike from within the United States. Their ties to the Mexican Liberal Party and the Industrial Workers of the World (IWW) played a part in the strike as did their inflammatory writings in their newspaper Regeneracion. It was this incident that began a concerted effort by the United States and Mexican governments to break the Mexican Liberal Party and go after the Magon brothers and their followers. Ricardo Magon would later cross paths with Tom Rynning.

On June 1, a crowd of around 2,000 Mexican miners marched to the mine site. While walking in front of the mine's wood shop, two American brothers turned a high pressure water hose on the crowd and then fired gunshots which resulted in killing three of the Mexicans. The mob of strikers turned angry and attacked the wood shop and captured the Metcalf brothers and hanged them. They then set fire to the brothers' bodies and destroyed the lumber mill.

Colonel William Greene, American owner of one of the mines in Cananea telegraphed authorities in Bisbee, Arizona. He asked for all the armed men that could be sent to protect American lives and property. On June 2, Tom Rynning, Captain of the Arizona Rangers, organized and led a posse of 275 American volunteers into Mexico. The posse crossed the Mexican border by train at the request of Governor Yzabel of Sonora. Orders had been sent to Rynning by Arizona Territorial Governor, Joseph Henry Kinney, not to cross the border. Rynning would later claim he never received those orders.

Captain Rynning's Bisbee Volunteers and the Mexican Rural Police arrived in Cananea and a battle ensued with the strikers. A number of strikers were killed and the miners were forced to retreat. The next day the Mexican Army arrived and there were more skirmishes resulting in more Mexican miners killed before the strike was broken. Upon arrival of the army, Rynning and his volunteers were ordered to return to the United States. The Mexican Army

Learning More About Sister Bourne Ryland

Eulalia “Sister” Bourne was born Eulalia Collins in 1892 at a homestead in Texas. She was raised in the White Mountains of New Mexico. She was a pioneer teacher, rancher and author. She took the name Bourne from her first husband and kept it despite being married a couple of times more. Why she kept the name is mystery to me considering the circumstances of their relationship.

In 1910 she married a prospector, William S. Bourne, in Estancia, New Mexico. They moved to northern Arizona shortly after. Bourne was nearly twice her age and the marriage soon became an unhappy one. In fact, it may have been doomed from the start. She met William in Carrizozo, New Mexico where she was working during the summer as a telephone girl. She had been attending a preparatory school in Albuquerque. She described William as a promoter and gambler.

“He had a nice buggy and a beautiful team of black horses and he was kind of the glamor boy of the town,” she said.

He was also 39 years old; Eulalia was 15 when they met and 16 or 17 when they married.

In a 1984 article in the Tucson Citizen newspaper, she said that William forced himself on her.

“Why he married me, I don’t know,” she said. “I guess I’ll never know ... If I had caused a commotion about the whole thing, Poppa would have to kill him and momma would be disgraced and everything.” She also alluded that William was abusive saying that “I was just never meant to be a battered wife.”

William Bourne would take her with him to Humbug, a mining camp near Prescott, Arizona. Her marriage and treatment by her husband would be the catalyst that would result in her getting into teaching. She knew she had to get away from him but had no money. A teacher she had met knew about her problems and suggested that she go to Phoenix and take the test to become a teacher. She passed the test and got her first teaching job in Beaver Creek, a small camp in the Verde Valley, in 1914. In a 1967 newspaper article she said about her husband, "At the time I became a school teacher I was married to a prospector who was going to find a million dollars any day but didn't have a dime."

Sister Bourne divorced William in 1916. At the hearing she and her sister, Ruby, testified that William failed to provide any support for her during the past two years. Neither William Bourne or his attorney showed up for the hearing.

What became of William Bourne is an interesting story. Following the divorce, he continued to prospect in northern Arizona and had interests in mining properties. He moved to the town of Wagoner. Here he became friends with James McClure, a rancher and miner, and his wife. McClure and his wife homesteaded a ranch in Tussick Spring about 15 miles from Wagoner. Tussick Spring had the only water within 5 miles. Bourne and McClure both had mining interests in the area.

In 1917, McClure volunteered for the Army and went to France during World War I. Bourne stayed at a boarding house for miners run by McClure's wife in Tussick Spring while working his claims in the area. McClure returned after the war in 1918. By 1922, Bourne was in a partnership in the Independence Mining, Development and Recovery Company, a New Mexico Corporation. Bourne's partners were R.L. Roberts, the former Sheriff of McKinley County and William S. Bickel a Gallup, New Mexico merchant. Bourne was the General Manager of the Independence Mine at Tussick Springs.

On Aug. 29, 1922, the Weekly Journal-Miner, a Prescott, Arizona newspaper had a headline: MYSTERY FEUD BEGINS AND ENDS IN QUICK EXCHANGE OF SHOTS; TWO FRIENDS DIE. The article read in part: Hidden from the sight of all men and enveloped in the hot passion of jealousy or anger, two men shot each other to death at Tussick Springs, 15 miles below Wagoner at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening.

They were William S. Bourne, manager of Independence Mine, and James McClure, a rancher-miner of the district. Mrs. McClure, thought to be the cause of the quarrel, was but a few feet away and out of sight when the men opened fire. Her two young daughters, imbued with the spirit found only among pioneers and mountain folk, rode mule-back to the nearest ranch to summon aid.

Arizona newspapers speculated about the mystery surrounding the shooting. Was the cause a love triangle or McClure's anger and disappointment over the mining claims in the area? What the newspapers reported about the investigation was that McClure had gone to Colorado and returned earlier than expected. McClure had parked his car at the post office and had walked to his ranch. He ran into his wife who was coming from the ranch walking. He told her to wait for him that he was going to get his hat and would join her. She lost sight of him as he went over a hill. Mrs. McClure then heard a loud shot followed almost immediately by three rapid shots. She went to see what the shooting was about and found Bourne dead and her husband wounded. They were about 6 to 8 feet apart. Bourne was shot in the chest by McClure's shotgun. One of Bourne's shots hit McClure in his right eye. He would die later that night.

Two Yavapai County Deputy Sheriff's would investigate the shooting, Grant Carter and Sterling Plummer. They believed that the men had quarreled over Mrs. McClure. Mrs. McClure denied that her husband had anything to be jealous of although she told the deputy that she believed her husband may have intended to kill her following his fight with Bourne. That is why he asked her to wait for him why he retrieved his hat. Interviews with other people living in the area were conducted and some said they had been expecting trouble between Bourne and McClure for some time.

The Weekly Journal-Miner summed up the story by saying: But whether it was a quarrel over mining interests the men had together or that age-old problem of love and jealousy, it was impossible to determine. Mrs. McClure says "No." But other people in the district, according to Grant Carter and Sterling Plummer, say "Yes."

A strange ending to the story which added to the mystery was the insistence by Mrs. McClure that Bourne and her husband be buried next to each other near where they fell. They were both buried side by side at Tussick Springs. (Note: Although newspapers reported the location as Tussick Springs, it is believed the area as it is known today is Tussock Spring.)

Sister Bourne's connections to the Copper Corridor area began in the 1920s. Her family lived in Superior between 1920 and 1930. She would visit them during her summer break from teaching in Tucson. Her parents were Albert and Sabrey Collins. Her sisters were Ruby, Sabrey, Bernice and Bessie. Her sister Sabrey taught school in Superior for five years.

In the fall of 1930, she began teaching children from the surrounding ranches at Redington. The one-room school house building is still standing at the Carlink Ranch. During this period, she filed one of the last homestead claims for grazing land in the Peppersauce Canyon area. She built a house and cattle ranch there. She then met and married Jack Ryland. He had a neighboring ranch. She was known by many in the area as Sister Ryland. When Jack left the area, she took over his ranch. In 1951 she moved all her cattle and belongings to a ranch in the Copper Creek area of the Galiuro Mountains. The GF Bar Ranch would be rounded up the leaders of the strike. They imprisoned some and hanged a number of them. Casualties on the striking miner's side were estimated as between 25 and 100 killed. It was reported that six Americans were killed. The miners were told to go back to work or they would be conscripted into the army and forced to fight in the Yaqui Indian campaign that was being waged in Mexico at the time.

Many government officials both conservative and liberal as well as the Mexican people were angry with the Porfirio Diaz regime's brutal handling of the strike and for allowing Mexican sovereignty to be violated when armed Americans were allowed to enter the country and attack Mexican citizens. Governor Yzabel was put on trial for allowing Rynning's volunteers to cross the border but was acquitted.

Tom Rynning was chastised by Governor Kinney. Governor Kinney apparently was not that upset with Rynning as he appointed him Warden of Yuma Territorial Prison in 1907. Rynning would then supervise the construction of the Territorial Prison in Florence. It was at the territorial prisons that Tom Rynning's and Ricardo Flores Magon's paths would cross. Magon was a high-profile prisoner in Tom Rynning's prison. Magon's crime was conspiring to commit a crime against the United States. Tom Rynning would be Arizona's last Territorial Prison Warden and the first State of Arizona Prison Warden.

A Thanksgiving I Will Never Forget

On this Thanksgiving Day while having your turkey dinner with your family take time to think of those far away from home, our men and women in the armed forces stationed overseas. While you're at it give thanks for those many men and women that sacrificed their lives so we can enjoy the freedom and way of life we have today. There is one man in San Manuel that takes time to count his blessings and gives thanks for the simple things in life like being able to celebrate another Thanksgiving Day with his family. Ruben Silvas also says there is a "Thanksgiving Day that I will never forget".

In November of 1943, Ruben was a member of the United States Army serving in Italy. After 13 days of combat his unit was sent back to a little town that they had liberated a few weeks before. "We had a hard time taking that town," said Ruben. The Germans had put up heavy resistance and the unit had suffered a lot of casualties. Ruben said that the town was about the same size as San Manuel.

As they approached the town they saw two little boys in the distance. "We asked our captain if we could give the boys some candy," said Ruben. "He told us to go ahead but take your rifles." Ruben and his buddies greeted the boys and gave them some candy. The boy's mother came out of the house or at least what was being used as a house. Ruben said that the building had no roof and only one complete wall still standing. The woman began speaking to them in Italian which no one understood. The soldiers feeling sorry for the family each gave the lady two cans of K-rations.

When they returned to camp one of the soldiers told the others to "cheer up, tomorrow is Thanksgiving Day and we may get the chow truck and have a hot meal." The next day the truck never showed up. It had been months since the men had a hot meal. Later that evening, the two boys from the previous day approached the soldier's camp. The men thought the boys wanted more chocolate.

The boys were able to communicate with the soldiers using hand gestures. It turned out that they were asking Ruben and his buddies to come to their home and eat with them. When the men arrived at the house they found that the boy's mother had a large pot of hot food waiting for them. The woman had used the K-rations and whatever she could find to make them and her family a hot meal. Being Italian, she had no idea about the American holiday. On a Thanksgiving Day in the middle of war torn Italy, strangers had come together to share a moment's peace and a hot meal. Two acts of kindness had brought them together. It was a Thanksgiving that Ruben has not forgotten. There are other things that Ruben has not forgotten and still haunt him to this day but there are many things he is also thankful for.

Ruben and men from his unit would be sent to England to train for the Normandy Invasion (D-Day). Ruben was with the 29th Infantry which would be part of the first wave leading the invasion. On June 6, 1944, Ruben, then 19 years old, would find himself struggling to live in the water off of Omaha Beach. He had been shot in the leg and was losing blood rapidly. He was able to get his field pack off before it dragged him under the water but was then unable to move due to shock and the loss of blood. Two of his fellow soldiers came to his rescue. They dragged him onto the beach which was under heavy fire from the Germans. He would be hit twice more while on the beach. To this day Ruben does not know if the men who helped save him made it through that day or the war. "I hope they made it," he said.

"I am lucky I'm here and very thankful. In 24 hours we lost over 9,000 men killed or wounded," he said. Ruben grew up in Patagonia, Ariz. This small town sent 18 young men to fight in the war. Ruben was one of three that returned. "War is pure Hell," he said.

After being wounded at Omaha Beach, he was evacuated to a medical facility in England, then to the United States. He spent time in hospitals in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. After the war he went to Superior, Ariz. and stayed with one of his sisters. Later he went to work for Magma Copper in Superior and in 1954 moved to San Manuel where he worked for the mine and raised a family.

Ruben knows he has much to be thankful for. We should be thankful for the men and women of his generation and for the simple things in life.

Thank you, Ruben, for your service and this story.
Editor's Note: Our Publisher, James Carnes, recently met with Mr. Silvas. He is still living in San Manuel. Mr. Silvas brought in a copy of the article above, which was published in the San Manuel Miner in our Thanksgiving issue in 2014. He asked Mr. Carnes if we would re-run the story this year, so that those who might not have read it six years ago, could read it this year. It's such a wonderful story that we felt we should accommodate him, only this time, we thought to share it with all our Copper Corridor readers. Please take time to thank a Veteran, a serving military member or the family of a Veteran or serviceman. They truly do sacrifice all for our freedom.
