Town Readies Itself for Christmas Holiday

It's almost Christmas Day. There's quite a bit of "rush" in the air. The stores are busy, all of them. Families are preparing to go for a visit or preparing for a visit. Our churches are getting ready for Christmas worship.

Behind the big door of the Kearny Fire Department it looks like Santa's workshop. Toys are piled on rows of tables. The rustle of wrapping paper and the slicing sound of scissors come from the happy work of our fire fighters, working to prepare the Christmas gifts for boys and girls.

I'm feeling as unprepared as I can be. Some of my family (especially my granddaughter) are coming for Christmas. That means a thorough house cleaning, the transformation of a room into a bedroom, and stocking the pantry. Oh, yes, we haven't put up our tree yet!

This has been an event-filled year for Kearny, and an incredibly busy time for all of us. The Gila River Fire affected all of us, as did the layoffs at ASARCO. Our town swimming pool was unavailable all summer, but the whole town pitched in and there will be a refurbished pool for 2016. Now the Town Council is readying itself to work on the ten-year plan for the town, including an important section on regional economic development. A Task Force is holding a series of meeting and gathering information for a possible police department covering the four towns of Kearny, Hayden, Winkelman, and Mammoth. The Town Council is also working on improving our water and sewer situation.

It's difficult to keep up with all of this. But I feel a sense of calm, for Kearny is a town of people with resilient spirits, taking lemons and making lemonade. And even as we are rushing about getting ready for Christmas, I think most Kearnyites value resilience over rushing into things. A steady pace wins the race.

I give thanks for Kearny. I like going to the Post Office and shopping at Norm's. I like waking up to sun and shadows on the mountains. Everything is within walking distance. Each winter we have our wonderful snow birds who come to share our life's pace as well as our climate.

Maybe we should give thanks for being off the beaten path. We don't depend on transient fads. We just make our families as strong as we can, make a living as best we can, create our own fun times, and lend a helping hand to each other. We're not self-reliant but inter-reliant, working things out with our own resources.

I pray that God will continue to work in us and bless us this Christmas.

Kearny Police Report

According to state law, there are two methods by which police may arrest suspected offenders. The suspect may be physically taken into the department and booked into jail, or the arresting officer may write a citation and release the suspect to appear in court later. All suspects are presumed innocent until proven guilty in a court of law. Only criminal citations are listed. All damages are estimates.

Pilot and flight nurse killed in helicopter crash

The Pinal County Sheriff's Office (PCSO) is investigating the deaths of two Native Air Ambulance crew members as the result of their helicopter going down in a remote area of the Superstition Mountains north of Superior at approximately 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 15. Pilot David Schneider, 51, of Gilbert and Flight Nurse Chad Frary, 38, of Mesa were fatally injured in the crash. Flight Paramedic Derek Boehm, 38, of Gilbert is the sole survivor and is listed in fair condition at a local hospital.

Pinal County Sheriff Paul Babeu said at a press conference last week following the crash, "We ask for prayers for the families of the crew members aboard. This is a medical crew who helps people each and every day and now, has gone down in this tragic incident."

In the press conference, Sheriff Babeu provided the following timeline of events:

On Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m., the Pinal County Sheriff's office communications center received a call from Native Air asking if there were reports of a helicopter crash. They were told that none had been reported at the time.

At 8:18 p.m., the dispatch center received a call from the Arizona Department of Public Safety advising the sheriff's office that Native Air had requested their assistance in locating a missing helicopter which had left the Phoenix-Mesa Gateway Airport, flying to Globe. Deputies responded to the reported area where last contact was made with the flight, but were unable to locate the remote location by ground.

At 8:27 p.m., Native Air advised DPS that they had found the crash site of their downed helicopter in a rugged area of the Superstition Mountains and had dropped off two of their medical staff on the ground nearby, who were making their way to the crash site.

At 9 p.m., the Arizona Dept. of Public Safety advised PCSO that they had located the crash site and were unable to land; however, they were signaled with a flashlight from the ground by a survivor of the crash. The US Air Force was called to assist in extracting the survivor from the crash site.

At 10:15 p.m., an USAF helicopter extracted the lone survivor from the crash site and flew him to a Phoenix trauma center.

Sheriff Babeu concluded, "At sunrise on Wednesday morning, PCSO Search and Rescue personnel were airlifted to the crash site to secure the wreckage and recover the two deceased crew members. The recovery operations continue at this time. PCSO is assisting the NTSB and FAA with their investigation of the helicopter crash. The federal investigators will make determination of the cause of the crash upon completion of their investigation."

Merry Christmas, Arizona

Nine miles north of Winkelman, Arizona are the ruins of the ghost town Christmas. In the springtime the mountain slopes surrounding Christmas are covered with bright orange poppies. The poppies grow in lush fields, in cascades of petals down the rock walls to the Gila River. A geologist once told me that the brightly colored flowers are a botanical indicator of copper in the soil along the old roads leading to the old ghost town. They give a clue as to the mining history of Christmas.

The town nearly had an earlier history and a different name. Dennis O'Brien and Bill Tweed staked and worked mining claims here in 1878. A rival operation was begun in 1882 by Dr. James Douglas. The miners never realized the great potential for profits in their diggings because they ran into legal problems. They discovered the claims were on the San Carlos until December of 1902 when N. J. Mellor and George Crittenden discovered that the reservation boundaries had recently been redrawn and now excluded the mineral laden area. The two men rushed in and named both the town and the mines for the day of their arrival. So when the first post office was established less than three months later, the town of Christmas, Arizona was officially founded.

Pinal Supervisors postpone lowering impact fees

By James J. Hodl
Copper Area News

A proposed revamping of how Pinal County levies developmental impact fees on new construction will have to wait until early 2016 while the county's Board of Supervisors wrestles with making the fees fairer for senior citizen housing.

Such fees are levied to finance road and infrastructure (including parks) improvements necessary to accommodate increased populations and traffic resulting from the building of new residential homes, and industrial, institutional and commercial construction projects. These fees are paid at the time the building permit is issued.

Under Resolution 120915-DF considered at the December 9 Board meeting, most impact fees would be lowered in Pinal County, while the fee structure for residential housing would be increased from two to four categories. Instead of separate fees for new homes under and over 1,500 sq. ft., the new categories would be under 1,000 sq. ft., 1,001 to 1,500 sq. ft., 1,501 to 2,100 sq. ft., and over 2,100 sq. ft.

In the four Pinal County Developmental districts, impact fees would rise only in the North Central District (which includes Apache Junction, San Tan Valley and Queen Creek), and not in all construction categories. For instance, in the less than 1,000 sq. ft. residential category, the fee would drop from $4,462 to $3,940 but rise in the 1,001/1,500 sq. ft. category from $4,462 to $6,532. Fees also would rise in the over 2,100-sq.-ft. residential, Institutional, Commercial and Other Services categories.

In the South Central, East (including Superior, Kearny, San Manuel, Oracle and Mammoth) and West districts would see all impact lowered from current levels, with non-residential construction fees in the West District dropping by more than $7,200. An additional fee was levied on construction in the extreme northern part of the East District (including Superior) where there are no arterial roads.

The Resolution was drafted based on a 19-month study conducted by the Tischler-Bise consulting firm. An earlier draft had fees rising more than in the current proposal, especially in the North Central District, where much of the projected population and economic growth in Pinal County during the next 10 years. But the fee structure was recomputed in the interim following criticism by Supervisor Stephen Miller (R-Casa Grande) that the higher fees would scare off some future construction.

Carson Bise, a managing partner in Tischler-Bise, described the proposed changes in the county impact fee structure during the meeting. Among other tweaks in the fees, Bise noted that the fees designated for road improvements were capped at current levels for single-family homes but boosted for apartment complexes. Fees designated for public safety improvements were decreased 54% for residential construct while increased to consider special needs for large retiree homes over 100% for non-residential construction.

The portion of the impact fee going to support the San Tan Substation will increase by $6 ($150 to $156) on residential construction; $244 on nonresidential construction.

In response to Bise, Supervisor Anthony Smith (R-Maricopa) said he was pleased with what the study proposed, but added, "I have one caveat. There is no proposal for a special exemption process for special projects such as senior citizen housing."

Smith criticized the fee structure for assuming that in all cases, the size of a home determines how many people will live there and how many cars they will own and use on county roads. But in retirement communities, homes larger than 2,100 sq. ft. are occupied by only one or two elderly people who stay on community property to use the amenities and travel outside less often than a typical family.

This opinion was backed by Peter Gerstmann with Robson Communities, a subdivision development firm.

"In the SaddleBrooke and SaddleBrooke Ranch communities in southeastern Pinal County, home generally larger than 2,100 sq. ft. are occupied by retired people. Average per-home occupancy in these two communities is 1.7 people, not the 5.2 people the study said for a home that size. Impact fees should reflect a home's intended use, not some hypothetical average," said Gerstmann, whose firm is responsible for the Robson Ranch and Quail Trail projects.

Supervisor Pete Rios (D-Dudleyville) wasn't totally buying the argument.

"When you retire, shouldn't you be downsizing instead of upsizing?" he argued, adding that providing a break for large retirement homes will move the cost of the impact fee to smaller homes.

Supervisor Todd House (R-Apache Junction) said he wasn't pleased with the doubling of impact fee categories for residential housing

"By charging progressively higher fees for larger homes, aren't you encouraging builders to build smaller homes? We already have enough small housing. We need more variety in Pinal County," House said.

House also argued that the trend in levying development impact fees is moving away from tying the fees to square footage. But Bice replied that the study found no evidence of that, adding that if House knew of any counties dropping square footage as a criteria for impact fees he should tell him where.

Spencer Kamps, legislative affairs vice president with the Arizona Home Builders Association (AHBA), also told the Board his group didn't like the impact fee structure proposed in the Resolution.

"AHBA opposes the ordinance as proposed, not because we want lower fees, but because we want fairer fees," Kamps testified. "When you base fees on square footage, you create disparity in housing choice. Likewise when you base road upgrade fees on trip counts. You should let consumers determine the types of housing they want."

Kamps added that infrastructure and safety improvements shouldn't all fall on new construction. Existing residents in the area benefit as well and should share in the cost.

Gerstmann echoed Kamps that existing residents who benefit from improvements should pay for part of them.

After nearly an hour of debate, Smith proposed that the Board put off consideration of Resolution 120915-DF until it be reworked to consider special exemptions for retirees who want to build large retirement homes. But Rios countered with his own proposal that the Resolution be adopted right away and that tweaks be considered later.

"We've been working on this Resolution for more than 1.5 years. Let's not waste that work. Enact it now because we need it now. We can consider exemptions later," Rios said.

But the Board went along with Smith's proposal and consideration of the Resolution will resume on January 6, 2016.

As the Resolution called for the new impact fee structure to become effective on March 14, 2016; it is assumed that under the 90 day requirement in Pinal County statutes, the effective date will be moved back.

Sharing Holiday Dreams

It's that time of year, again, when I receive letters from young people, who write to me from every land on the planet, sharing their good wishes and hopes for special presents. As you know, I have a special place in my heart for the children in the Copper Basin and greatly enjoy their letters. They are so special, that I want to share them with their friends and family.

I hope you all enjoy them as much as I did, when I sat down to read them, during a break from packing my sleigh. Try reading them, while sipping hot cocoa, that's been gently stirred with a candy cane. It's the way I like to read them best, and, it's a very relaxing holiday treat.

Dear Santa,
I wish I can have a mood ring that is so cool, fuzzy Pj Pants and a ever after high doll Pls Santa pls
P.s. I wish my mom and dad can get married pls Santa.
Love,
Brianna Slate.

Dear Santa,
Its your favorite boy Javier Ortega! As you probably know, I am 6 years old now! I have lost some teeth this year but luckily the front ones are growing in so I don't have to wish for my two front teeth this year! I am now in 1st grade. I think I am doing a good job in school. I do all my homework and have been getting good at my reading. I am also starting to learn my prayers because I want to go to catechism and learn all about Jesus. I have a new nickname this year, call me "Jeff" I got it from the movie 22 Jump Street! I love that part "Why you not talking? ...My name is Jeff" My family says I am a bit of a clown and that I get that from my Daddy. We like to do funny stuff or make funny faces. Well Santa, are you ready for my lost? Here it goes:
This year for Christmas I am not asking for too much, I don't think. I would like to have a tablet, you know like a iPad Mini or something. My Mommy and Daddy are tired of me using their phones all the time to play my games and watch youtube videos. I like a new football team every year. My Daddy say I'm kinda like my Tata Robert, but as long as I don't like the Dallas Cowgirls its ok! So can you please bring me a Odell Beckham Jr. Jersey and a sweater? Here are a few little things that I would also like to have-a WWE Braun Showman action figure, Just Dance 2016 for my X box 360, some board games to play with my family like Monopoly or whatever, some Wildcat golf clubs so I can go golfing with my Tata Robert, and a Snackee.

Santa, I want to tell you thank you for having that talk with Jesus last year. On August 28th, my sister Karanna was born! I would have liked to have a brother but I love her with my whole little heart and wouldn't trade her for the coolest toy there is! She is growing fast. I would have to say that she has been a good girl now that she doesn't cry all the time. She is still little so she can't have too much this year. Maybe you can bring her clothes or some little toys like a baby doll or ones that have music or lights. If you bring her some clothes my mommy said to tell you she wears 3-6 months.

Santa I love you and Rudolph and all the reindeer and I hope you can make all my toys in time. I am a bit of a cookie monster so I don't know if I will leave you the good cookies or not yet but I will leave you some cookies and milk and some food for your reindeer out back.
Love,
Javier Ortega

Former Hayden wrestling star returns 'home' to host clinic

By Andrew Luberda
Copper Area News

Former Hayden wrestler Lino Estrada is returning to the high school to co-host a one-day wrestling clinic on Dec. 30. Elementary school-aged wrestlers through high school-aged wrestlers are invited to attend the clinic that will feature instruction from Estrada and Kyle McCrite, a National Champion and two-time All-American at Grand Canyon University.

Estrada, a three-time state champion at Hayden, currently coaches at Colorado Mesa University. After graduating from Hayden, Estrada attended Grand Canyon University, where he earned All-American recognition and won a regional championship.

He's excited for the opportunity presented by current Hayden wrestling coach Jeff Gregorich, who invited Estrada to return home to host the clinic, aiming to help Hayden achieve a more long-term goal to return the school's wrestling program to prominence among the state's elite.

"As a former Lobo I really appreciate what Coach Gregorich is trying to do at Hayden," Estrada said. "To be able to come home and host a clinic in my hometown and my home gym is awesome. It's really important to me to give back to my community and my hometown, so I'm really excited for this clinic."

Wrestlers who attend the clinic can expect to learn some of the same things that helped Estrada and McCrite achieve championships and accolades all the way through the collegiate ranks.

"First things first, we're going to have some fun and make it enjoyable for the kids who attend the clinic," Estrada told the Copper Basin News. "We'll focus on the fundamentals and some basic techniques. I learned as a young kid, and carried it all the way through college, that fundamentals and technique can take you a long way in wrestling."

The 2015 Hayden Lobo Holiday Wrestling Clinic will be held Wednesday, Dec. 30, at the Hayden High School. For wrestlers 13 and under, registration opens at 8:30 a.m. and the clinic will be held from 10 a.m. to noon. For wrestlers 14 and older, registration opens at 12:30 p.m. and the clinic will be held from 2-4 p.m. Cost is $25. The concession stand will be open and there will be shirts for sale. The event is sponsored by the Hayden High School Wrestling Club.

Lino Estrada at a college wrestling meet. He returns to Hayden to lead a wrestling clinic.

Kyle McCrite, a National Champion and two-time All-American at Grand Canyon University, will lead the clinic with Lino Estrada.

Kathy and Ras Vaughan of Washington State

First Yo-Yo hikers on Arizona Trail complete their journey

By Mila Besich-Lira
Copper Area News

Ras and Kathy Vaughan of Washington State are the first though hikers to complete what is called a Yo-Yo hike which means that the couple has hiked from the southern border of Arizona and Mexico to the Arizona-Utah border only to yo-yo back on foot to the southern starting point at the international border.

The two completed their Yo-Yo hike on Dec. 20 after a three month adventure on the Arizona Trail. This hike set the initial records for time of a Yo-Yo hike on the Arizona Trail. The couple endured weeks of usually cold and wet weather including snow in many of the mountain ranges they traveled through. When they started in September it was still warm and Summer like, but that weather quickly changed to rain and snow as they continued north.

The couple enjoys adventuring as they call it. They pre-planned their trip and had their supplies and food pre-mailed into many of the local post offices on the Arizona Trail. They stopped in Superior on both their north and southbound trip to enjoy "the best veggie burger on the trail," they explained, grab their supplies and recharge before heading to their next stop in Oracle. A San Manuel Miner reporter caught up with them on Dec. 9 in Oracle. They came off the trail to handle laundry and have something to eat at the Oracle Patio Cafe.

Their jobs in Washington allow them to take this time off to accomplish these adventures they explained. Their trail budget was about $3,000, which included gear, travel and food for the three month trip.

Give Great Books to Kids this Holiday Season

(StatePoint) For a merry holiday season, fun new books make great gifts for kids. Don't know what's the latest and greatest in the world of kid's literature?

Here are four new titles to consider for the young book lovers in your life: A Classic, Retold "Home Alone," which arrived in theaters 25 years ago, is one of the top grossing live-action comedies of all time. Now, illustrator Kim Smith has reimagined the John Hughes story as a classic Christmas fable. "Home Alone: The Classic Illustrated Storybook" comes complete with bumbling burglars, brilliant booby-traps, and a little boy named Kevin who's forced to fend for himself. Through a series of comic adventures, Kevin learns lessons about responsibility and the importance of family.

Serial Adventure

Followers of the Miss Peregrine series will be excited to receive The Miss Peregrine's Peculiar Children Boxed Set featuring all three novels in the series, including the newly released "Library of Souls: The Third Novel of Miss Peregrine's Peculiar Children." This action-packed series includes a special collector's envelope of 12 peculiar photographs, highlighting the most memorable moments of this extraordinary three-volume fantasy. Spooky Mystery

Meet Warren the 13th, of "Warren the 13th and the All-Seeing Eye," a cursed 12-year-old Victorian bellhop who's terribly unlucky, yet perpetually optimistic, hard-working, and curious. Orphan Warren's pride and joy is his family's hotel, but he's been miserable ever since his evil Aunt Annaconda took over the management. Annaconda believes a mysterious treasure is hidden somewhere on towns are usually designated by the opening and closing of the United States Post Office. The Christmas post office was closed on March 30, 1935, officially becoming a ghost town. They say that the largest ruins left in Christmas belong to the General Store which used to have the Post Office window inside. During the holiday season, it became the most important place in town as thousands and thousands of parcels, cards, letters, and packages came through the little town to get the distinctive "Christmas" postmark.

CHRISTMAS, AZ

The biggest year round industry in town was still copper mining. Located in the Dripping Springs Mountains, Christmas sat on a huge ore deposit. During its heyday, the industry supported as many as 1,000 residents.

From time to time the ownership of the town changes hands. The claims are still occasionally worked and sometimes temporary residents move to Christmas and live alongside the ghosts of past prospectors.

Northeast of Christmas is another place associated with wildflowers and minerals. This special place is also near the banks of Gila River but unlike Christmas, - Peridot Mesa remains well inside the boundaries of the San Carlos Indian Reservation. The mesa is named for what is found here - peridot. Peridot is the gem variety of the mineral olivine and is generally considered the birthstone of August. This bright green gem stone is similar to a much lighter (and inexpensive) version of an emerald.

The countryside surrounding Peridot Mesa does not appear to be rich in copper; there are only scattered poppies blossoming in the springtime. Still, every time I stand atop Peridot Mesa, a big table top of a mountain, my eyes are dazzled by the flowers. Just which flowers depends on which blossoms are in season in Apache country. In the late summer, daisies wave in the breeze. The smiling daisies complement the bright green gemstones glittering in the sunlight. During the spring, seas of blue lupines cover the hills. The lupines roll away in azure waves, reaching all the way to the horizon where the distant purple mountains mark the beginnings of the Mogollon Rim.

It is the rocks which capture ones attention in the end. Peridot is formed when there are lava flows with a crust of green gemstones perched on top, far beneath the surface of the earth. This lava flow pushes upwards from below but never quite reaches the surface. It was this type of internal geological pressure which forced this particular piece of earth to rise and create Peridot Mesa in the first place. Over many millennia, erosion has washed away layer after layer of topsoil, until the ancient lava with its crust of jeweled olivine is revealed.

From atop the crown of Peridot Mesa you see a view as splendid as that of any throne. I have never been able to stand there without feeling awe at the panorama of mountains and blossoms. Beneath your feet the ground is littered with green crystals. It looks as if some helicopter bombed the mesa with broken green glass.

One day I noticed that the top of Peridot Mesa was crawling with ants. Carefully they picked in mazes of green crystals. For those ants it must have been just like living in the Land of Oz; inhabitants of the Emerald City. Towering above the tiny insects

I could imagine myself as some sort of wonderful, wonderful wizard.

"Ouch!" I shouted, slapping at my pant leg. One of the ants was biting the king.

The peridot found atop the mesa is of a good gemstone quality. In fact miners are active here; activities overseen by the Apache nation. There is also illegal mining, as rogue prospectors trespass on reservation lands. Sometimes there are even running gun battles between the Apache and prospectors; echoes of the Old West and Mangas Coloradas.

From atop Peridot Mesa you can see forever, but a series of rolling hills and a deep narrow gorge prevent you from seeing the Gila River. You can smell it however. Even during the hottest and driest parts of the summer, the moisture from the river arrives on the breeze and refreshes. The river pays it no mind, the water rushing downstream.

I love to float on the Gila River, and have traveled on the swift current by canoe and inner tube. I prefer the canoe. The stretch of river just below the Coolidge Dam has been protected as a bald eagle nesting site and has been closed to the public. A canoe or the grounds, and she'll do anything to find it. If Warren wants to preserve his family's legacy, he'll need to find the treasure first -- if the hotel's many strange guests don't beat him to it!

This middle-grade adventure features illustrations on every page and a lavish two-column Victorian design.

True Tales for Athletes

Help make every goal, touchdown, and championship of all the greats come to life, from Babe Ruth (so incorrigible that his parents put him in reform school at age seven) to Muhammad Ali (who learned to fight at age 12 after a thief stole his bicycle). "Kid Athletes" is packed with inspirational stories from the world of sports, sharing tales from the childhoods of famous athletes.

Billie Jean King rose from modest circumstances to win 39 Grand Slam championships; Wilma Rudolph triumphed over polio to become the fastest woman on earth; and martial arts legend Bruce Lee credited his success, in part, to childhood dance lessons.
