Superior Chamber celebrates multiple grand openings

The COVID-19 pandemic has damaged much of the country's economy. But folks in Superior are weathering the storm and coming out swinging against the odds.

Several businesses in Superior celebrated ribbon cuttings and grand openings with the Superior Chamber of Commerce recently. Some are new and some have some new offerings for consumers in Superior; they include, Mountainside Coffee on Main St. (early morning coffee and pastries), Miners on Main St. (restaurant), Bruzzi Vineyard Tasting Room (wine and art), Atlas Mining and Manufacturing Company (True Value Hardware), Superior Hardware and Lumber (hardware and lumber) and Casa Dona Lola (restaurant).

Superior Chamber President Sue Anderson wanted to reassure that "in spite of COVID, Superior is open and new businesses are coming in."

Be sure to stop by and say hi. Or even better, stop by and show your support by shopping or having something to eat or drink.

Paths to great careers.

Local Artist Returns Home: Javier Gomez, Tzu Tattoo

Superior has always had a unique role in developing artists, welcoming them into the community and despite lacking actual art courses in the public schools, many students are still inspired to grow their artistic talents. Blank walls on buildings have become a canvas and art now pops up in a variety of places.

For Javier Gomez, his journey as an artist started when he was invited to help develop a mural in downtown Superior when he was in high school. He and several of his schoolmates worked on the mural that is on the Senior Center wall in the alley by the Food Court Park. The mural was funded through a grant program; local artist Gloria Arvizu helped to lead the program and saw that Javier had the talent to be part of this larger project. He will tell you it was in that moment that he was told he was an artist and he realized that he could use his talents for a profession. In that program, he learned about different artists, their techniques and the impact of their art on society. He would keep honing his talents. He graduated from Superior High School in 2001.

Javier continued to develop his talents after high school. He joined the Coast Guard and served proudly for six years. During his time in the Coast Guard, he was encouraged to continue his art, but this time he was encouraged to use his skills for tattoo art. It started with some of his shipmates asking for tattoos and eventually he was asked by one of his superiors, Chief Warrant Officer Apple G. Pryor to design a tattoo for her. This tattoo would inspire him to keep working, developing his skills and continue to let his faith guide his life. She wanted something meaningful to keep her inspired and to show her faith; she was the first African American Female Chief Warrant Officer.

This tattoo would be something special. Her story and why she wanted this tattoo came after the Captain of their ship asked her to remove her cross necklace. When she refused his request, the Captain forcefully removed the necklace. In that moment, Pryor knew that she wanted something permanent that showed her faith, something that would always be with her, something no one could rip off or take away from her. In a moment of stillness in her faith, she knew that she was going to ask Javier to make her the tattoo. She asked him to pray on it and let God lead him to the design. For Javier, this task would lead him into the profession of tattoo artistry and also business ownership.

Chief Warrant Officer Pryor continues to be a mentor and friend to Javier and made the visit to his new tattoo shop TZU Tattoo in Superior for another design.

The name of TZU Tattoo, comes from the Mayan word for hummingbird.

"I started studying hummingbirds after seeing them in many meditations," said Javier. In his study of the hummingbird he learned that they were fierce birds even though they were tiny; they reminded him of the spirit of Superior.

Those days in high school that inspired Javier to become an artist in turn inspired him to return home to Superior and open a shop. He wanted to give back to his community and has many ideas that he is working on to incorporate youth and other art aspects into his business. The store also offers some retail items such as T-shirts, hats and other merchandise in case a tattoo isn't in your plans.

Cards of Thanks

Cards of Thanks

On behalf of myself and my family I would like to express how thankful we truly are. The love and support have been very much appreciated, comforting, and overwhelming (in a positive way).

When we lost our beloved Willy, we were utterly lost and did not know how we would ever go on without him. In an instant our family, friends, and community all started reaching out. With this we have been blessed more than we could have ever hoped for.

Even though we struggle with not having Willy, the support will forever be remembered and appreciated. Thank you to everyone who has reached out in so many ways. The many prayers, phone calls, text messages, meals, cards, letters, fundraisers, those who were able to attend Willy's funeral, and stopping by our home to check on us, my family and I will forever be grateful. Words will never express how truly thankful we are as a family for all the love and support. I pray daily for our Heavenly Father to wrap his arms around each and everyone of you. With our deepest love and gratitude, we will forever be grateful.

With all our love,
