All Invited to Pioneer Days

Our location on the junction of the San Pedro and Gila Rivers is very consequential in Arizona's history. Any place in Arizona with water was a favored place, and this area was (and is) especially rich. The Kearny Expedition followed the Gila in large part, and noticed how it meets with the San Pedro. Moving on a little further, they discovered Mineral Creek and named it for the tint in the waters from the copper ores.

In later years, the bridges at Winkelman and Kelvin connected the sides of the rivers and made transportation possible. The Florence/Kelvin road has a long history, and only recently has any paving become part of the story.

The discovery of Mineral Creek was also the incidental discovery of copper. The blue-tinted waters revealed the mineral content. Gold and silver attracted the prospectors, but the real payoff has been copper. Some of the techniques for mining lower-grade ores were pioneered here, making this area important to the rest of the world. To this day, the Ray Mine and other area mines supply much of the national and world-wide demand for copper.

It is appropriate that Pioneer Days, the annual festival on Thursday through Sunday, March 15-18 sponsored by the Copper Basin Chamber of Commerce, is celebrating the role of copper mining in this area. Copper is one of the keys to Arizona's economy.

The Pioneer Days will be greatly expanded this year. There will be the mainstays such as the carnival and the Pioneers Day Queen contest. But there will be additional activities and music in the uptown area, as well as expanded activities at the carnival. The twang of country music, the beat of popular music, and the rich, full sound of mariachis will fill the air. The horseshoe tournament will be given fuller prominence. There will be a shuttle train between the carnival and Alden Road.

And, if we want it, we can have a Pioneer Days parade on a larger and grander scale. I think it would be wonderful if Hayden, Kearny, Winkelman and Mammoth would each have a great float connecting the towns to mining history. You may know that, when Kearny was planned, it was the first town in Arizona with the intentional purpose of bringing Hispanic and Anglo cultures together. The Ray Mine and the smelter operation were part of this intentionality, for even into the 1950s there was a disparate pay scale, one for Hispanic workers and one for Anglos, and the decision was to change all that before Kearny came into being.

A Good Read for Teachers

According to her memoirs, after 1891-born Annie Forbach had attended school in Mammoth, Arizona, she attended the new school that had been established along Aravaipa Creek because by then there were more people with families living there. The first teacher at the Aravaipa Creek school was Margaret Turner who had taught school in Mammoth, and she boarded with Annie's parents, the James Brandenburgs, early Aravaipa Creek settlers. Annie, in sixth grade then, and the teacher who taught all the grades, had to walk three miles to school, having to cross the creek eight times. After teaching her second year there, in 1904 Margaret Turner married Annie's brother, William Brandenburg. Annie's seventh grade teacher was a Mrs. Dodge, and that was Annie's last year at the Aravaipa school.

Annie then went to Tempe Normal Training School to complete her eighth grade, and to get there her parents took her to Winkelman in their wagon and team to board the train for Tempe, where she was met by a Mr. Finch in his horse-drawn bus. After Annie's eighth grade graduation, she left on the train to Winkelman and was met by her parents with their wagon and team.

Annie returned to Tempe Normal as a Freshman in 1907, and she wrote that as time went on, students from Kelvin, Ray, Florence, and even Globe came on the Winkelman train to Tempe, and those from Globe came to Christmas then to Winkelman, and those from Ray caught the train at Kelvin.

After Annie's graduation, she became a first grade teacher in Winkelman where the school house was a one-room converted tent house. The next year she started teaching in Hayden where an extra first grade teacher was needed. She taught two years in Hayden, and most of the time she walked there from the Winkelman property she had bought, which was a four-room house with four lots. When there was a vacancy in the Winkelman school's first grade in 1915, she applied and got that position, and the new school there was on a flat hill higher than the town of

We are strongly bi-cultural to this day.

Maybe Norm's IGA could have a float featuring wheat flower and masa harina, pork ribs and nopalitos, mustard and salsa – all of these are available from the store. Maybe one float could feature country music and another some rousing Mexican music.

I really would like to see groups and organizations plan and carry out larger and more sophisticated floats without discouraging the simpler "family fun floats" which are a part of it all. It would be great to see the floats and other entries tell the story of the Copper Basin for all to see. This is a wonderful opportunity for our local businesses, as well as ASARCO. The parade can be the standout feature, with all the new planned features adding the spice to make Pioneer Days a full and satisfying celebration. Let's see what we can accomplish.

Copper Basin resident Paula Crawford awarded prestigious Rangel Fellowship

Paula Crawford, 2018 Rangel Fellow

On Nov. 17, Paula Crawford, a 2014 graduate of Arizona State University, was awarded a 2018 Charles B. Rangel International Affairs Fellowship following a highly competitive nationwide contest. The Rangel Fellowship, funded by the U.S. Department of State and managed by Howard University, supports extraordinary individuals who want to pursue a career as a Foreign Service Officer in the U.S. Department of State. The Rangel Fellowship will provide Paula with approximately $95,000 in benefits over a two-year period and give her the opportunity to represent her country overseas. She was one of only thirty fellows selected nationwide.

Paula graduated from Arizona State University in 2014 with a bachelor's degree in Political Science and Business. In 2012, Paula completed a Boren in Kosovo, researching Albanian women's inheritance rights. After graduation, she accepted a Fulbright English Teaching Assistantship in Macedonia. Paula now works at Arizona State University as a coordinator for the Caesar E. Chavez Leadership Institute which focuses on college readiness, civic engagement, and building leadership skills for high school students.

She plans to pursue a Master's degree in public policy and gender studies before beginning her career as a Foreign Service Officer. As part of the Rangel Program, Paula will work for a Member of Congress on international issues in summer 2018. In the summer of 2019, the U.S. Department of State will send her overseas to work in a U.S. Embassy to get hands-on experience with U.S. foreign policy and the work of the Foreign Service. Upon graduation, Paula will become a U.S. diplomat, embarking on one of the most challenging and rewarding careers of service to her country.

The Director of the Rangel Program, Patricia Scroggs, stated, "We are thrilled to have Paula join our program. It was clear then that she had a strong commitment to making a difference in the world through diplomacy. Her experience at Arizona State University, as well as her work, intern, and volunteer experience, have provided an outstanding foundation for her future success. I am confident that she will excel in graduate school and will contribute to global peace and prosperity as a U.S. diplomat."

About the Charles B. Rangel International Affairs Program: The Rangel Program is a joint initiative between the U.S. State Department and Howard University that aims to enhance the excellence and diversity of the U.S. Foreign Service. Begun in 2003, the Rangel Fellowship Program selects outstanding young people each year from around the country who exhibit the ideal qualities of a Foreign Service Officer. Managed by the Ralph J. Bunche Center at Howard University, the Rangel Fellowship supports those selected through graduate school and professional development activities that prepare them for their careers as Foreign Service Officers. With the academic, professional and financial support from the program, Fellows now serve as diplomats around the world, contributing to a more diverse representation and effective execution of U.S. foreign policy. More information can be found online at www.rangelprogram.org.
