What is to become of Apache Leap? Area now under special management

By Cat Brown
Copper Area News

The Town of Superior is nestled in the shadows of the Apache Leap mountain. It's an iconic face of the town. The mountain and its future has been a hot button topic for the townspeople over the years. Concerns in the past have been mostly about the mining of the mountain and what that could mean to the mountains wellbeing. But now what is at stake is the continued use of Apache Leap by hikers, climbers, equestrians, and ATV users.

It was during the Land Exchange that legislation was drafted that called for a Special Management Area to be formed, a group that would be run by the Forest Service. This group is now the official caretakers of the Apache Leap Mountain. The legislation directed that this Special Management Group create a plan within three years for the preservation and use of the area. The land involved is actual two land parcels: 697 acres of Tonto National Forest and 110 acres of Resolution Copper land.

The original legislation states that the purpose of the management group is to: Preserve the natural character of Apache Leap, to allow for the traditional uses of the area by Native American people, and to protect and conserve, the cultural and archeological resources of the area.

The plan also stipulates that whatever plan is drafted is to be made in consultations with the three major concerned parties: The Indian Tribes, The Town of Superior, and Resolution Copper. And it does vaguely mention the consultation of "other interested members of the public."

It goes on to say that considerations in preparing the plan should include: protecting the cultural, archeological or historical resources of Apache Leap, including permanent or seasonal closures of all or portions of Apache Leap, and provide access for recreational.

Creating the plan will be no easy tasks since there are many parties that have strong opinions on how the land should be managed. And some of those groups agendas are at cross purpose and conflicting. Heading the group, and maneuvering through these potentially rough political waters, is the Project Manager of the Special Management Area – Mary C. Rasmussen. Ms. Rasmussen is from the U.S. Forest Service and Tonto National Land Service.

Preliminary talks with some of concerned parties about the content of the plan happened at the Recreational Users Group, or RUG, December's meeting. At that meeting things got a bit heated as representatives of Superior, Mayor Mila Besich-Lira and Town Manager Todd Pryor, along with many recreational groups that were in attendance, expressed their fears that the tribal considerations might outweigh the voices of those who want to see continued recreation use of the area.

Some of those fears were alleviated in this month's council meeting when the Forest Service did another presentation where they gave the Council and the Mayor a rundown of the concerns they have heard from the stakeholders. Concerns the Forest Service is trying to take into consideration as they create the management plan. These concerns include: The preservation of the area's natural beauty, protection of the cultural resources on the land, the continued use of the land by recreational groups, and considerations towards closing the area certain times of year to accommodate the Native American Ceremonies.

If things go well, there will be a balance struck between the needs of the tribes and the use of the land by the recreational users. If things don't go well, an unlikely but possible outcome could be that the cultural and archeological concerns could outweigh all other concerns. Which would mean the mountain could become off limits to not only the people of Superior, but all the people who have had free use of the land, for hiking and climbing, for generations.

The Forest Service is in a tough spot — how do they balance the needs of the tribes, the town and the mine? Can the concerned parties compromise? Can the forestry create a plan that would work for everyone? It will be a balancing act for sure, and the Superior Town's people and Management, as well as all the recreational users in the Copper Corridor, are voicing their concerns and holding their breath in hopes that the Apache Leap Management Area group gets it right.

Anyone who wishes to send their comments or concerns about the plan have until the end of January to submit them in writing to: Mary Rasmussen, Project Manager, Tonto National Forestry, Supervisors Office, 2324 E. McDowell, Road Phoenix, AZ, 85006 / Email:Info@ApacheLeapSMA.us

Bryan Seppala named Emerging Leader by HLI Copper Corridor

Bryan Seppala was awarded the Copper Area News Emerging Leader award at the 2016 Hispanic Leadership Institute Copper Corridor graduation in December. Bryan works in the Communities department for Resolution Copper. Even before Bryan worked for Resolution Copper, Bryan was involved in his community of Globe. As a high schooler he was Student Body President and after graduation he attended the University of Arizona. After college Bryan knew he wanted to return to Gila County to work and begin his adult life.

He began his career at Fry's and is currently employed by Resolution Copper. He graduated from the 2016-Spring HLI Copper Corridor Class and was instrumental in helping the program to be held in Globe-Miami for the fall 2016 class.

This year Valle del Sol and Copper Corridor Economic Development Coalition added an award to recognize emerging leaders in the region. "Copper Area News is pleased to sponsor this award. Young leaders need to be inspired to continue to serve our communities, the future of our region depends on our youth," said Michael Carnes, General Manager of Copper Area News.

Bryan explained that he is motivated to serve his community because he sees the potential in the area. Currently Bryan serves as the President of the Southern Gila County Economic Development Coalition, a board member for the Globe-Miami Chamber of Commerce, member of the Globe Rotary and is also involved with the Regional Aquatics Center Task Force.

A new leadership role that Bryan has taken on is fatherhood, he and his fiancé Christy had a baby boy Mason in December. His motivation to serve is even more important now to impact the community that his son will live in.

The Copper Corridor Economic Development Coalition partners with Valle del Sol to host the Hispanic Leadership Institute in the Copper

Bryan Seppala

Corridor. The next HLI Copper Corridor class will be held in fall of 2017. For more information on the HLI program or the CCEDC contact Mila at 520-827-0676.

Homes and buildings in Superior will be open for visitors to tour this weekend.

Superior residents open their homes for Annual Home Tour; visitors most definitely welcome!

This weekend, the doors to Superior are open to all who want to learn about our community and have a great time. The doors to the Town, as well as doors to several homes and buildings, are wide open for the ninth annual Home and Building Tour.

You'll see an eclectic assortment of renovated homes, chock full of color, décor and great low cost ideas. Wonder what businesses used to be in our old buildings on Main St? You'll see that and more at this fun event.

In addition to the tour, enjoy a first class Antique Show at the restored Magma Club, the community center in past years. Galleries and one of a kind shops will delight you.

Wyatt Earp presents "A Life on the Frontier" and Steve Gerlich, US Forest Service, will share stories about the legendary Mattie Earp and Big Nose Kate.

Stop by the Town Hall to see what's in the future for Superior. The Town of Superior will be showing the train robbery sequence of "How the West was Won" the 1962 movie filmed outside of Superior throughout the day during the Home Tour event weekend. The movie will be played at the Superior Town Hall Auditorium AKA the Council Chamber. The showings will start at 9 a.m. and be playing continually through Saturday and Sunday until 2 p.m. when they will play the full digitally remastered movie. There will be no charge for this showing.

The famous Mata Ortiz potters from Mexico will be crafting and selling their wares. Join a group for a guided hike or relax and enjoy live music. Take a peek behind the Main St buildings to see our painting project in progress.

As a bonus for all ticket holders – receive 2 for 1 passes to the Boyce Thompson Arboretum and the Renaissance Festival. The Home Tour is scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 28, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, Jan. 29, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Cost is $14, good for both days. Tour begins at the Chamber of Commerce building, 165 W. Main St., Superior. Call 520-689-0200 for more information.
