Final forum set for Ray Schools' proposed four-day week Thursday

The Ray Unified School District will host its final community meeting on Thursday, Feb. 20, at 6 pm, in the school cafeteria, to share information on the District's possible transition to a four-day school week, beginning with the 2014-15 school year. The school district is encouraging public input on this change to the 2014-15 school year.

Many of the smaller schools in the surrounding area have already begun using a four-day school week to save on transportation and utility costs. Currently Ray and Superior are the only schools in the immediate area who still use the traditional calendar. Hayden, Miami and Globe have all used the four-day schedule for the past two years. The four-day week allows the students and teachers to conduct their personal business on a work day without having to be absent or require a substitute teacher.

The Ray Unified School District board tasked the district administration to find cost savings measures to combat the $300,000 budget deficit that the school has been dealing with. One of the proposed ideas is to have the district utilize a four-day school week. Superintendent Curt Cook explained that the administration has been doing extensive research on the use of four day school weeks since October. To accommodate the required instructional hours the school day will have to be extended 15 to 30 minutes.

"In addition to savings on utilities other schools have used this schedule to help attract highly qualified teachers," Cook said..

The board is expected to hear a final presentation and report on the outcomes of public meetings at their February meeting. A vote to adopt the new schedule could happen as soon as the March school board meeting.

Kearny PD honors hometown heroes

The Kearny Police Department would like to give a huge shout out to two Kearny citizens who need to be congratulated for a good deed well done.

The scenario played out last week with Officer Mata responding to a report of a cat stuck on top of what was thought to be a telephone pole between Bristol and the apartments behind the GKI. He was told the feline had been up there for several days and was causing quite a ruckus in the neighborhood.

The officer first contacted the Kearny Fire Department for assistance, but was told the kind of equipment needed was not available on the fire trucks. He then contacted the Winkelman Fire Department and got much the same response.

It was then determined that the pole was not a telephone pole but was a power pole instead. Officer Mata contacted APS and was told a truck would be sent out as soon as possible, but may take some time.

In the meantime enters Dick Bynum and Robert Anderson, who live in the neighborhood. They offered assistance to Officer Mata by providing a ladder tall enough to get to the cat. While the officer and Anderson steadied the ladder Bynum climbed up and rescued the poor kitty.

The cat was happy to finally get off its perch and scampered away. APS was canceled. Thank you to these two town heroes.

Buffalo Soldiers and the Brownsville Affair

By John Hernandez
Copper Area News

February is Black History Month. This month was chosen to honor the births of Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglas. Douglas was a former slave who became a leader in the abolitionist movement. He was a writer, newspaper editor and orator who wrote and fought for civil rights and against racism. President Lincoln, we know, freed the slaves in 10 states of the Confederacy that had rebelled against the Union with his Executive Order known as the Emancipation Proclamation in 1863. This would set the stage for the passing of the 13th Amendment that would abolish slavery in the United States in 1865. The Emancipation Proclamation also allowed for freed slaves to join the United States military. During the Civil

The Cheyenne began telling stories about a new kind of soldier 'who had fought like a cornered buffalo' and had 'thick and mangly hair like the buffalo'.

War 200,000 blacks joined the Union Army. They would serve in segregated units. The segregation of blacks in the military would continue until 1948 when President Truman issued Executive Order 9981 forbidding discrimination against military personnel based on race, color, religion or national origin.

When African Americans were granted the right to vote in 1870 with the passage of the 15th Amendment to the constitution, a large majority of them joined the Republican Party, the party of Lincoln. African Americans and other minorities would continue to struggle for voting and civil rights. A number of incidents would begin to turn African Americans away from the Republican Party. One major incident would involve one of the segregated military units, the 25th Infantry. By this time the African American soldiers serving in the segregated army units were known honorably as the "Buffalo Soldiers".

African Americans have fought and died for our country from the Revolutionary War to the present. They not only fought this country's enemies but had to fight prejudice, segregation, and ignorance as well. Following the Civil War in 1866, six black regiments were formed. They would later be consolidated into four regiments, the 9th and 10th Cavalry and the 24th and 25th infantries. Originally the 10th Cavalry formed at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas and would earn the name Buffalo Soldiers during the Indian Wars in the west. It would then be applied to all of the black regiments. Although historical sources disagree about how they got their name, it is believed that it originated with the Cheyenne warriors in the winter of 1867.

The story told was about a 10th Cavalry soldier Private John Randall who was assigned to guide two civilians on a hunting trip. While hunting, they were attacked by 70 Cheyenne warriors. In a running gun battle the two civilians were killed and Randall's horse was shot out from under him. Randall was able to run and find some cover in a washout underneath some railroad tracks. Although wounded and armed only with his pistol, he held off the warriors until troops arrived. The Indians fled when they saw the troopers approaching. The soldiers found Randall alive with a bullet in his shoulder and 11 lance wounds. Thirteen Cheyenne warriors lay dead. He would survive to fight another day. The Cheyenne began telling stories about a new kind of soldier "who had fought like a cornered buffalo" and had "thick and mangly hair like the buffalo".

The Buffalo Soldiers would fight in the Indian Wars on the Great Plains and in the southwest. They would also fight in the Spanish American War, the Philippine Insurrection, World War I and World War II. They policed the National Parks before there were park rangers and patrolled the Mexican Border before the Border Patrol was formed. They participated in the hunt for Pancho Villa under General John "Black Jack" Pershing who would become general of the armies in World War I. Pershing got his nickname of Black Jack from serving as a Lieutenant in the 10th Cavalry. He was known to praise the black troops and treated them with professionalism. While teaching at West Point, Pershing was unpopular with the cadets because he was a strict disciplinarian. The cadets and other military officers knew of Pershing's service commanding black troops. They took to calling him "N*r Jack", a racial slur behind his back. It would be softened to Black Jack although the intent was still meant to be disrespectful.

When the Buffalo Soldiers were first formed, many white military officers did not want to serve with them. Some that did were prejudiced and treated them poorly. The troops also put up with being supplied with second rate weapons and equipment as well as old worn out horses. Despite this, from 1867 to 1898 they received the most Congressional Medals of Honor and had the lowest desertion rate of any regiment in the U.S. Army. In many of the areas where they were assigned, the Buffalo Soldiers faced racial discrimination from the civilian population. This was especially true in former confederate states. On July 28, 1906 the 25th Infantry arrived at Fort Brown near the town of Brownsville, Texas along the Mexican border.

As soon as the soldiers arrived they faced discrimination and racial prejudice. Segregation was legal in Texas at the time. Soldiers who had entered local saloons looking for a drink were told the bar only served whites. Racial slurs taunted them on the streets. Two soldiers were assaulted by a white man for walking on the sidewalk in what he felt was too close proximity to a group of white women. The man knocked one of the soldiers down from behind by striking him in the head with the butt of his pistol. He then threatened to shoot both soldiers if they did not leave town. A Buffalo Soldier would get into a fight with a store owner.

On Aug. 13 a white woman alleged that a black man in a khaki uniform had grabbed her by the hair although she managed to get away. Threats were allegedly made by the woman's husband that Negro soldiers would be shot on sight if caught on the streets of Brownsville. Tensions were running high in Brownsville which was only about 400 yards from Ft. Brown. Major Penrose, commanding officer at the fort ordered a curfew and confined the 25th to camp grounds unless on official military business or they had a pass. All soldiers were required to be in the fort by 8 p.m.

Around midnight on Aug. 13-14, gunfire erupted in a business section of town. One white man was killed outside of a saloon and a Hispanic police officer was seriously wounded. The townspeople blamed the shooting on the Buffalo Soldiers. They claimed that over a dozen soldiers attacked the town indiscriminately firing between 100 and 200 shots into the buildings aligning the street. The soldiers at the fort aroused by the sound of gunfire began preparing to defend the fort.

During an investigation of the alleged incident, Major Penrose said that all soldiers at the fort had been accounted for as well as all the rifles in the armory. The guns had also been checked to see if they had been fired recently with negative results. Penrose said that all the men at the fort had denied involvement or knowing anything about anyone leaving the fort to go into town. The people of Brownsville called out for further investigation by state authorities and letters were sent to President Theodore Roosevelt asking him to look into the matter and remove all the black soldiers from Fort Brown.

Captain McDonald of the Texas Rangers was sent to investigate and said that he had 12 suspects including the soldier

Maria Munoz most deserving of Citizen of the Year

By Vicki Clark
Copper Basin News

This year there was only one nomination received for the annual Citizen of the Year award, but according to Rose Bradford, chairman of the selection committee, the nominee is most deserving. "The committee unanimously voted to honor her. ...had that not been the case there would be no COY presentation this year," Bradford stated. The selection committee is made up of past COY recipients.

Maria Munoz, of Hayden, was nominated in a letter that started as follows: "How does one choose a Citizen of the Year: Look around for a silent hero. A Citizen of the Year is responsibility-to-the-personified. The one chosen must be an example of altruism, a representative of the area whose purpose is to help others.

"In this case, the individual has proven to be concerned with the future of the Copper Basin Area. Most of the activities of this candidate have centered upon furthering education for students in our rural areas. Time and effort are spent promoting and emphasizing what is best for the different individuals to help them succeed in the present and the future. Simply stated, she is determined to make our communities a better place to live by helping the future leaders and citizens."

Maria has been a member/vice mayor of the Hayden Town Council for seven years and she has served on numerous boards and committee including the St. Joseph's 100 year Anniversary, Asarco's 100 year anniversary, Asarco's Family Day in Hayden, Hayden-Winkelman Light Parade committee, the Sept. 16th Fiesta and the 4th of July celebration.

"Most of all she works a full-time job at CAC where she does her best work," the letter went on to state. She is the Student Advisor for the Aravaipa, Hayden, Kearny and Superior areas, is the GED Chief Examiner for the CAC campus, an advisor for College for Kids and runs the Student Leadership Program. She also represents CAC by sitting on the Copper Corridor Board, is a member of San Manuel Rotary and of the Delta Kappa Gamma Zeta Chapter.

According to the nomination letter, Maria also finds time to coordinate fundraisers for CAC including the CAC Annual Golf Tournament in Saddlebrook, the AVC Car Show and info/fundraising booths at such local events like Pioneer Days, Winter Wonderland and Octoberfest.

The letter ends with "Her positions as a Council Member/Vice Mayor, Advisor, or Coordinator are proof of her determination to make the Copper Basin/Copper Corridor a better place. She is proof that with determination, education, and hard work anything is possible.

"So it was not only a pleasure but an honor to nominate such a great colleague and most of all a great friend, Maria Munoz, for 2013 Citizen of the Year."

The 2013 Copper Basin Citizen of the Year will be recognized Monday, Feb. 24 during the annual business dinner to be held at Rosalia's in Kearny. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. and reservations can still be made. Menu

The Bearcats girls' basketball team will face Desert Christian in the first round of the Division IV State Championship Tournament. The game will take place at Prescott High School on Feb. 21, 2014. It is scheduled to tipoff at 3 p.m.

The 'Cats enter the tournament with a record of 13 – 15 and coming off a loss in the first round of their sectional tournament against Joseph City. Sideny Chenoweth, Savannah Willis, and Stormee Galka will lead the 'Cats as they look to advance with a win versus the Eagles.

Desert Christian enters the tournament with a record of 18 – 10 and, like the Bearcats, is coming off a loss in the first round of its sectional tournament. The Eagles are led by a couple of sophomores, Brynn Matthias and Hannah Bjorgum. Both players average around 8 points per game. Bjorgum leads the team in rebounding with an average of 6 per game.

The winner of this game will face seventh-seeded St. David on Feb. 22 at Yavapai Community College.

The Ray boys were also on the court last week in Miami for a sectional matchup with Mogollon where they lost a heartbreaker 72-76.

PASTOR'S CORNER

Free From Me

By Pastor Joe Palmer
Fellowship Baptist Church

To review, a person may feel very unhappy and/or have less than good relationships with others because he thinks that he cannot trust a good God Who loves him and has wonderful plans for him. Thinking this way, a person naturally looks to other people to make him happy. When people don't, he becomes angry at them and eventually at himself. But, determined to live, he develops plans which will only cause more heartache for him.

Contrast this with a person who knows that the good God who died on the cross for him loves him and will cause all things to work out for his good. Such a person lives from a position of ultimate security. He doesn't need to demand anything from anyone. He is going to be all right no matter what. Such a person can choose to respect others, because he doesn't have to protect his own ego. He can give up worrying about himself, and instead he can worry about helping others, because he knows God will look out for him.

Furthermore, such a person has the motivation for valuing other people and for looking out for them. God values them and loves them. And since there is a profound sense of gratitude for all that God has done, such a person finds himself compelled to love those whom God loves.

When a person doesn't have to be selfish to survive, he finds himself free from his own fears and free to love others.

What women should know about heart attacks

From Pinal Rural Fire & Rescue Information By Rachel Rabkin Peachman, Health Magazine

An estimated 38,000 women under age 50 have heart attacks each year in the U.S. But heart trouble can easily be confused with other ailments, like indigestion. Check out our symptom decoder so you don't miss any warning signs.

Tingling down one or both arms

or legs

While this often means you've got a pinched nerve or arthritis in your neck, it's important to rule out heart problems first. See your doctor if you notice any tingling in your extremities. Nausea/vomiting

You could have more than just a bug if your upset stomach comes along with other heart-related symptoms, such as shortness of breath, a cold sweat or pain in your chest or back.

Shortness of breath/racing heart

It can be really difficult to differentiate between a panic attack and a heart attack, since they share these symptoms. A few tells: Panic attacks can be triggered by a stressful

Free workshops for entrepreneurs and small businesses to be held in Kearny

Kearny - Have you always wanted to start your own business or grow the one you have? Are you sure you want to get started, but, fuzzy on the details of what you need to do?

It may seem that with the economy being what it is, that it is a bad time to start a business. The fact is, there is never a perfect time to launch, or not to launch, a business based on larger economic trends. If the economy is doing poorly, you are more likely to be able to find good deals on rental space and equipment, while, if the economy is strong there are more consumers out there with dollars burning holes in their pockets. So, how do you know if your idea is right for the economic time you are dealing with? You do your homework and learn from those who already know what they are doing.

To start building your future, or, to make sure that what you have already started stays on the right track, call 520-490-8433 to reserve a seat for one, or all four, free workshops which will be presented by the Copper Corridor Business Success Center over the next few months at the Church of the Good Shepherd, in Ray Hall, 617 Danbury Road, Highway 177 in Kearny.

Each session provides tools you can use, immediately, to start or expand your business. It's a chance to learn from experts and network with other business owners in the Copper Corridor. Join us for relaxed and informative workshops.

All workshops are held on Tuesdays, from 11 am - 1 pm. On Feb. 18, the course is Starting Your Own Business; Mar. 4 brings you How to Market Your Service or Product; Developing Your Brand will be held Mar. 18; and, the series will wrap up on April 8 with Social Media 101.

event (though not always), and other signs can include trembling, intense terror and an overwhelming sense of doom. Panic attacks also typically come on suddenly and should pass within five minutes, while women's heart-attack symptoms tend to start slowly and linger. The only way to be sure about what's happening, however, is to get to the ER.

Jaw pain

Your jaw could hurt if you're having a heart attack, because the nerves attached to it lie close to ones that come out of your heart. If the pain is constant, you probably have a dental problem; if it pops up intermittently and gets worse when you exert yourself, it's more likely to be heart-related.

Dizziness/light-headedness

Feeling faint for no obvious reason (like doing a tough workout or being dehydrated) could mean that not enough blood is getting to the heart, especially if you're also suffering from shortness of breath and a cold sweat.

Discomfort or burning in the chest or back

Women often describe a heart attack as tightness, heaviness, pressure or a squeezing sensation. The pain doesn't have to be severe or sudden; it could come and go for weeks, so it's often mistaken for indigestion or heartburn. If it doesn't come on shortly after a meal, if you don't normally have indigestion or if you're also experiencing symptoms such as nausea, it needs to be checked promptly by a doctor.

Extreme fatigue

If you're unable to walk a block comfortably or if you feel like you have to stop and rest while going about your daily activities, it could be a sign that blood is not getting to the heart fast enough.

Check with your doctor if you have any concerns.

BUFFALO SOLDIERS

that had been assaulted on the streets in Brownsville. He turned in his investigation to state officials. The investigation results were submitted to a grand jury but they refused to indict the suspects. McDonald persuaded a judge to issue arrest warrants for his 12 suspects. Major Penrose refused to turn over his men fearing they could possibly be lynched.

A federal investigation was ordered by President Roosevelt. All 167 soldiers were questioned, and even though they were threatened with being discharged from the service, they said they were not involved and had no knowledge of anyone leaving the fort to go into town. The report came back stating that there was a "conspiracy of silence" among all the soldiers of the 25th Infantry. President Roosevelt in an unprecedented action ordered all 167 black soldiers dishonorably discharged. Most of these men had been in the army over five years. A number of them had over 15 years of honorable service. Six of the Buffalo Soldiers had been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, the nation's highest award for valor. A court-martial was ordered for Major Penrose and Captain Macklin, white officers of the 25th for negligence of duty. They were both acquitted.

Black leaders and some white congressmen tried to get Roosevelt to change his mind but he refused. He was reminded that the Buffalo Soldiers had fought at his side in Cuba, including the famous charge up San Juan Hill. Some historians believe the Buffalo Soldiers were actually the first troops to charge up the hill and they bore the brunt of the fighting, although Roosevelt and his volunteer "Rough Riders" would get the credit. W.E.B. Dubois, a civil rights activist, author, and one of the co-founders of the NAACP urged African Americans to register to vote and remember Roosevelt and the Republicans during the next election.

Texas congressmen and a few others from the south would attempt to pass legislation to remove all African Americans from the military and ban them from future service but the bills would fail. In 1909 after government hearings, 14 soldiers from the 25th would be approved to reenlist. In 1972, congressional hearings were held which exonerated the Buffalo Soldiers of the 25th Infantry from the charges brought against them. It also acknowledged that they had never been granted their due process rights. Although most of the soldiers had died, two survivors received a small cash settlement and a pension. A few widows also received survivor benefits.

On July 25, 1992 a Memorial Park consisting of the Buffalo Soldiers Monument, Circle of Firsts, and the Walkway of Units which commemorates the significant "firsts" in the history of African American soldiers and units in the United State's Army was dedicated at Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas. General Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the first African American to serve in that position led the dedication. He acknowledged that without the Buffalo Soldiers he would never have come as far as he had in his career. He said, "The powerful purpose of this monument is to motivate us. To motivate us to keep struggling until all Americans have an equal seat at our national table, until all Americans enjoy every opportunity to excel, every chance to achieve their dream."
