Deadline approaching for Travel ID

The federally imposed deadline of Oct. 1, 2020 is drawing closer. Effective that date, travelers age 18 and above attempting to board a plane will need to present one of the following: new Travel ID, federally recognized tribal issued photo ID, border crossing card, permanent resident card, U.S. Citizenship and Employment Authorization Card (I-766), U.S. military ID, foreign government issued passport or a U.S. passport to get through TSA security. The Arizona Department of Transportation Motor Vehicle Division (MVD) offers the Travel ID at all MVD locations statewide. It is also available at those authorized third party providers that offer license and ID services. The Arizona Travel ID comes in the form of an identification card or driver license.

Arizona news stations recently reported that only a few people have applied for the new ID and that as the deadline approaches MVD offices could become crowded. It is recommended that you fill out an application online and make an appointment with your local MVD office. You must apply in person.

The Arizona Travel ID driver license or identification card will cost $25. You will need to compile the originals of three types of documents and bring them with you to the MVD office:

Proof of legal presence: a current passport, passport card or birth certificate. (Married women who have changed their name will also need to bring their marriage certificate.)

Proof of Social Security number: your Social Security card, a W-2 form or a recent pay stub with your full Social Security number on it.

Proof of residency (2 documents): a recent utility bill, mortgage statement, bank statement, tax document or your voter registration card.

At your MVD office or approved third party office, you will check in and have your photo taken. You will then review your identification documents with a service representative. Once your identification is confirmed, you will pay the $25 fee. The Arizona Travel ID will then be mailed to you within two weeks. The MVD office in San Manuel is open Wednesday and Thursday 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. It is located at 190 N. Redington Rd.

For more information and to begin the application process, visit AZTravelID.com.

Food Sensitivity

Ideally, food is a source of nutrition that provides the fuel necessary for us to function and the raw materials for us to regenerate ourselves. There are several reasons why a food might interact with our bodies with poor consequences, signaling a food sensitivity.

Our bodies are designed to extract the nutritional components of food as we funnel them through our digestive tract. There is a progressive process beginning with chewing and mixing with saliva, proceeding to further breakdown with hydrochloric acid in the stomach and then further interacting with enzymes from our pancreas and small intestines. This all gets the food broken down to its basic building block components which can then be assimilated into our bodies.

The inside of the gut is technically outside of our bodies. The interface between the inside of our gut and the inside of our bodies is a major line of defense. Over 70% of our immune system functions here to identify substances that it perceives as hostile, such as bacteria. It reacts quickly to eliminate them using antibodies that are specific to those particular substances. These unique antibodies will remain on guard for the duration of our lives. This is primarily how allergies are formed. A food substance may enter the body without being broken down to its recognized building block form and therefore be identified as foreign and hostile. This food will then be forever labeled an allergen.

A food allergy is the situation when our body's immune system perceives a food as harmful and assigns an antibody for that particular food, or a particular molecular structure on that food. This antibody/allergen reaction causes the unpleasant "histamine" response which can precipitate a "leaky gut" syndrome thus facilitating more allergies.

Another reason for unpleasant reactions to food is the loss of specific enzymes necessary to break down a particular food. The best examples of this are lactose intolerance and gluten intolerance which normally have breakdown enzymes located in the small intestines.

Other reasons for food sensitivities include a reaction to toxic additions such as pesticides, coloring and preservatives, as well as exposure to certain inflammatory foods that are specific triggers for arthritic flare ups. One example of a potential inflammatory food is the nightshade family (tomatoes, potatoes, green peppers and eggplant).

The general health of each individual's body plays into its susceptibility to a reaction. An individual may have generalized inflammation like Irritable Bowel Syndrome or may have dysfunctional stomach acid that effects their ability to process food assimilation.

The most eloquent method of identifying a specific food sensitivity for a specific person is by using an elimination/challenge diet. One first eliminates all suspected foods. Then wait ten days or more until all symptoms of sensitivity are resolved. If symptoms do not resolve, eliminate more suspected foods. Once symptoms are clear, begin adding one of the suspected foods each day or so and note a reaction. This will identify reactive foods.

Next is to distinguish between allergic foods and enzyme deficiency versus toxic exposure. If symptoms resolve using digestive enzymes, then that will be the management strategy for that food. If the food is clearly a toxin, then diligent avoidance will be the strategy. If a food allergy is probable, then avoidance for at least six months may reduce that food's antibody population enough to resolve the symptoms. This will continue to manage the problem as long as the food is not eaten more than once a week.

To reiterate, food sensitivity can be caused by a food allergy or by an enzyme deficiency or by toxic exposure to additives or by trigger foods for an already existing inflammatory condition.

In summary: First, maintain a healthy working body. Second, select healthy foods, avoiding toxic additives. Third, do the elimination/challenge diet. Fourth, recognize and eliminate trigger foods. Fifth, rule out enzyme deficiencies, supplement as necessary. Sixth, identify and manage allergies.

Retired Hayden-Winkelman school District food service worker Yolanda Romero looks surprised at how many children are showing at the Hayden-Winkelman School District Kearny park stop for meals.

Hayden-Winkelman USD's Meals on Wheels Program

Hayden-Winkelman Unified School District began its "meals on wheels" program for all children 18 years of age and younger. Five days a week, the district will be delivering over 320 meals to hungry children throughout the Copper Corridor.

Hayden -Winkelman Food Service Director Barbara Martinez coordinates this massive feed the children effort.

"Our goal is to feed as many children as possible during this unprecedented time. We don't care what school district you attend, what school colors you wear, if you are hungry, we will feed you. Parents or children can show up at the stop and tell us how many meals you need, and we hand them out. It's as simple as that," stated Director Martinez.

"The school district has mobilized it workforce to prepare and deliver the meals. It is a team effort and it makes us feel better that we are helping our community, parents and children during these stressful and uncertain times," added principal Pam Gonzalez.

"The District plans to continue providing breakfast and lunches for children as long our schools are shut down. I believe this will also mean throughout the summer months. Between the copper strike and the coronavirus, I am certain that families are struggling and it the role of our public entities to ensure meals our being provided to our children. At this point it is our top priority," stated Hayden-Winkelman School Superintendent Jeff Gregorich.

Here are a listing of Hayden-Winkelman "Meals on Wheels" stops between 10 and 11 a.m., Monday-Friday.

Governor Ducey orders dining rooms

The COVID-19 Virus continues to shake up the world. At the local level executive orders and declarations of emergencies have been made at the county, state and local levels. Local elected leaders and the business community are bracing for what what is predicted to be a very deep recession, one that will affect many hourly workers in the hospitality industry, the hardest as the jobs they have been working at may not come back if these closures and restrictions last too long.

In Pinal County there are currently 20 cases: seven are still active and 12 have recovered. The number of positive test results are expected to grow over the next two weeks. Statewide there are 234 active cases and two people have died. Overall the spread in Arizona has been deemed moderate, according to the Arizona Department of Health Website. Gila County has not had any positive tests confirmed despite 23 tests being completed: nine have been negative and 14 are pending.

Currently, Pinal County, the Town of Kearny and the Town of Superior have declared emergencies. Their emergency declarations allow the Chairperson of the Board of Supervisors, or the Mayors to act swiftly in regards to the emergency.

In an effort to flatten the curve of the virus or to stop the spread Governor Doug Ducey issued several executive orders for residents and business owners to follow. In an earlier Executive Order, the Governor forced any event over 50 people to be cancelled. The CDC and President Trump reduced that number to 10 in their recommendation guidance on helping to stop the spread of the COVID-19 virus. Governor Ducey ordered all bars, gyms and movie theaters to close and every restaurant was forced to close their dining rooms and only offer take out/carry out options. This included patios at restaurants that also had to shutter. Over the weekend many visitors to the region were found eating in their cars or waiting outside local restaurants for their food to be carried out to them. The order did allow local restaurants with liquor licenses to sell sealed package alcohol beverages to their patrons to go. This was an exception to the normal rule which only allows establishments with Class 6 Liquor Licenses to sell package liquor. When the order was enacted on the evening of Thursday, March 19, these orders only affected Pinal, Pima and Maricopa Counties. As of press time, this order to close dining rooms, gyms and movie theaters affected 11 of Arizonas 15 counties, the order applies to all counties where there is an active COVID-19 case. Gila County does not have any active cases at (press time-Monday night), so restaurants in Hayden, Winkelman, Globe and Miami are not affected.

The Executive Order issued also halted all elective surgeries in the state of Arizona and the expiration on drivers licenses are also delayed for both regular drivers licenses and commercial drivers licenses.

School Districts are all ordered to remain closed for an additional two weeks, and at this time schools are scheduled to re-open on April 10, 2020. During this closure districts are expected to provide remote instruction to their students. Many local schools are sending home packets or creating online access for instruction for Junior and Senior High Students. This is bringing up the conversation of lack of internet access and technological equipment for rural students. The state is not forcing districts to make up the hours, and the federal government has indicated that they will not require the mandated federal testing. Local schools are also providing breakfast and lunch to students at all local school districts.

The closure has also affected the High School Spring sports seasons. Currently districts are not holding practices or games, however the Arizona Interscholastic Association (AIA) has voted to host the State Championship tournaments later in the Summer should the ban on public

Many wonder if Governor will order a shelter in place order such as the Governors of California and New Mexico. In a press conference last week, the Governor indicated that he was not planning to issue a shelter in place order. On Monday evening, March 23, 2020 the Governor issued another executive order which outlined which occupations were deemed necessary and essential and should continue to operate. The order prohibits a city or town from issuing any order that restricts a person from performing an "essential function" as designated by the Governor, DHS Director or DEMA; requires any order restricting persons from leaving their home to be consistent with DHS advice and be coordinated with DHS prior to issuance; and defines essential functions. Oracle State Park celebrates five years with dark sky park designation

Oracle State Park held a “Trail Music and 5th Anniversary Celebration of International Dark Sky Park Designation” on Saturday, March 14, 2020.

In early 2014 Oracle State Park began working on becoming an International Dark Sky Park (IDSP). In late 2014 the International Dark-Sky Association (IDA) designated Oracle State Park as the 20th IDSP in the world and the first in the Arizona State Parks system. Every year in March Oracle State Park celebrates this important designation. Being the 5th Anniversary, March 14 was a special day at Oracle State Park.

Before sunset Park visitors were invited to walk along the one-mile Nature Trail Loop and enjoy live music featuring various instrumental artists heard along the path. Instruments included guitar, mandolin, drums, harmonica, flute, cello and violin.

Upon returning to the Kannally Ranch House patio the visitors were greeted by hummingbirds.

The Friends of Oracle State Park had a table to sell memberships, astronomer’s flashlights and photographs of the night sky taken by Mike Weasner. Literature on the harmful effects of artificial light at night (also known as light pollution) provided by IDA was also available.

Park Ranger Jennifer Rinio welcomed the approximately 300 visitors to the Park and then introduced Deborah Gaines, President of the Friends of Oracle State Park. The Friends group supports activities at the Park with donations and volunteer help.

Ranger Rinio then introduced Mike Weasner who spoke on how the designation came about in 2014 with the support of Park management and staff, local residents, business owners and elected officials.

As sunset approached, six telescopes were set up by members of the Tucson Amateur Astronomy Association and the SaddleBrooke SkyGazers Club. About 150 Park visitors braved the decreasing temperature and stayed to view the planets Venus and Uranus, galaxies, nebulae, and star clusters through the telescopes. They were also able to view and appreciate the dark night sky in Oracle and saw the Winter Milky Way high over head.

A highlight for many people was seeing the Zodiacal Light in the western sky. The Zodiacal Light is only visible from dark sky locations in the spring (western sky after sunset) and fall (eastern sky before sunrise).

“One thing I didn’t put into my report,” Weasner told the San Manuel Miner, “was that many people came up to me at the Star Party and told me how much they appreciated the Park being open. It allowed them to come and enjoy the night sky. It gave them some time away from all media coverage about COVID-19 and was very therapeutic for them.”

Editor’s Note: Many thanks to Mike Weasner for sharing his photos and report of the event.

The hummingbirds provided a little entertainment for Star Party goers.
