OBITUARIES

Waltraut Ingeborg Schröder-Hartman

Waltraut Ingeborg Schröder-Hartman, "Violet", age 86, passed away on March 31, 2016 after surgery on a broken leg. Violet was a very outspoken woman, a spice of life. She loved music, reading, sewing, crocheting afghans and gardening. In her later life, she spent time feeding and watching the birds in the yard. Violet loved to talk about the adventures in her life.

Violet was born May 19, 1929 in Berlin, Germany. As a young girl, Violet, with her brother Junter, lived through the turmoil of World War II. Violet's mother was an opera singer; her father a military police officer. Often, to escape the chaos of the bombings, the Russian control of Berlin and the Berlin Airlift, Violet and her brother were sent to various areas of the country. This would include a Catholic monastery for schooling in Switzerland or their uncle's farm in the country. Violet's father was killed during the war, her mother and brother had survived the good and the bad of the war. Violet was very athletic. She loved skiing; most of all, swimming was her joy. In fact, her children could not figure out how she could bob in one place without moving her arms.

In 1945, when the war was over, Violet had a job with the BBC Document Center. This is where records or papers were sorted to use during the Nuremberg Trials. Violet was, at this time, 17 years old. She worked for a Colonel in the U.S. Army. This is where she met a young, 19 year old, CLP Donald C. Hartman who also worked in the Document Center. Violet always said they were comrades; they fell in love.

Donald finished his tour of duty and was sent home to South Dakota. It took a year of corresponding with the help of Donald's sister, Loraine and Violet's brother translating German to English. Violet and Donald had to get permission from their parents before Violet could come to America to be Donald's bride. Donald's grandfather became Violet's sponsor. Thus she became a German War Bride.

Don and Vi lived on a farm that was bought with a G.I. loan. Now, Vi, age 19, became a farm wife, soon to be a mother of three children. First came Charlotte, then David and Clyde. In the summer of 1960, Don moved the family to Oracle. Vi was with child. Allen was born.

Violet lived in Oracle for 56 years. She worked with her husband to raise a family, helping at the 76 Union Gas Station pumping gas or doing paperwork. She became a private duty nurse at Deveron Gables Nursing Home in Tucson and several other agencies. Violet was a member of the Women's Auxiliary and was also a big part in the makings of the Oracle Fire Department. She loved her grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Violet loved the holidays with them, especially Easter. She lit up those young eyes with baskets full of goodies.

Violet is survived by four children, Charlotte (Ron) Strawn, David (Patricia) Hartman, Clyde Hartman and Allen Hartman; five grandchildren; three step-grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren and four step-great-grandchildren. Violet was preceded in death by her husband Donald C. Hartman, brother Junter Schroder, mother Martha Schröder and father Fredrick Schröder.

Sherri Welckle

Sherri Lynn King Welckle, 50, of Gold Canyon, former resident of Oracle, died March 10, 2016 at the Chandler Regional Hospital in Arizona. A native of Greenville, SC, she was a daughter of Johnny J. King of Greenville and the late Sandra K. Miller, and was of the Baptist faith.

Surviving, also, are her husband, Shawn Joseph Welckle; two daughters, Jenna (Erik) Parris of Albuquerque, New Mexico and Kendall Holland of Phoenix; three sons, Russell Holland of Greenville, South Carolina, James Welckle of Prescott, and Derek Gibbs of Phoenix; two brothers, Chris (Trasi) King of Charleston, South Carolina and Joel King of Greenville, South Carolina; and, one granddaughter, Avery Holland.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations to Taylors First Baptist Church, 200 W. Main St., Taylors, SC 20687; phone number 864-244-3535.

Major upgrade of Pinal County transportation

By James J. Hodl
Copper Area News

An effort to sell Pinal County residents on a 20-year plan to improve transportation throughout the county primarily by building new roads and improving existing roads – and to fund these projects through a 0.5% increase in the county sales tax – moved into high gear recently.

Between March 21 and April 5, the Pinal Regional Transportation Authority (PRTA) held five public meetings where citizens saw the plan unveiled and could learn how these road projects would benefit them. Meetings were staged in the towns of Apache Junction, Coolidge and Maricopa; the communities of San Tan Valley and SaddleBrooke.

Nearly all of the proposed transportation projects are in western Pinal County, where about 88% of the county's population resides, according to Andy Smith, director of PRTA and transportation planning manager with Central Arizona Governments (CAG). The plan was created with a big assist from Phoenix-based Dibble Engineering.

The major new road proposed is the North-South Corridor that will run 51 miles, connecting U.S. 60 in Apache Junction with Interstate 10 southeast of Eloy. Although the exact route of the North-South Corridor has not yet been determined, it will likely run just east of San Tan Valley, through Florence, and to the east of Coolidge and Eloy. A 5-mile road extending State Route 24 from Maricopa County to the North-South Corridor north of San Tan Valley also is planned.

Additional road improvements include the widening of State Route 347 from the Maricopa County border to the town of Maricopa, Selma Highway running through Eloy and Casa Grande, and assorted streets in Coolidge and Casa Grande. Another new road will divert traffic south of Maricopa to Interstate 8.

San Tan Valley will see Gantzel Road extended south of Bella Vista Road to Hunt Highway.

In southeastern Pinal County, Golder Dam Road near SaddleBrooke and Oracle will be widened.

The PRTA transportation plan also calls for creation of Park and Ride lots throughout the county. According to Smith, these lots will serve as hubs where individuals can park their autos for the day while joining carpools with people working at the same places to commute to their final destination. Smith hopes that existing (or new) transit systems will eventually link to these hubs to take people to their jobs by bus or light rail. At least one is targeted for San Tan Valley near intersection of Combs and Gary Roads.

Although hinted last Fall, the PRTA plan includes no proposals for creating public transportation systems in Pinal County at this time. However a dial-a-ride program, where residents who do not drive can call for rides to a local hospital or other locations, is proposed.

Although no big transportation projects are proposed in eastern Pinal County, PRTA promises to provide a minimum $300,000 annually each to the towns of Superior, Kearny and Mammoth to fund local road projects from revenues collected by the proposed county sales tax hike.

Speaking at the meetings, Smith said the transportation improvements included in the PRTA plan are necessary to keep up with the rapid growth in county population. Between 2000 and 2015, the number of people living in Pinal County grew from 180,000 to more than 400,000. Vehicle traffic has increased dramatically, resulting in severe rush hour congestion on many roads leading into Maricopa and Pima counties, and an increase in traffic accidents and fatalities.

The current system of roads is inadequate, Smith noted. There is a desperate need for a high-capacity route to get from northern to southern Pinal County. There are inadequate connections to Interstate 10 from local routes and businesses. Many east-west routes in the county are two-lane or dirt roads. And San Tan Valley, which has more than 88,000 residents, as only two major roads for travel (Ironwood/Gantzel Road and Hunt Highway).

Road improvements haven't kept up with population growth since the economic recession hit in 2008. Federal highway fund has been flat since then, causing the county's Highway Trust Fund to fall short. And to balance the Arizona state budget, the legislature shifted highway funding to other government programs.

Yet Pinal County needs to improve its transportation system to spur economic development and create new jobs. When # infrastructure unveiled at five public meetings

selecting a site for starting or relocating a business, the executives look at the transportation infrastructure, especially as it relates to quickly getting their products to market. Enticing businesses to locate in Pinal County will not only create new jobs but also enable county residents to work closer to home and not have long commutes to jobs in adjoining counties, Smith noted.

The North-South Corridor could attract the businesses and retail areas on the east side of San Tan Valley that also could create the tax base the community needs to eventually incorporate as a town, one local resident said at the San Tan Valley meeting in the former Mountain Vista Middle School.

For regular citizens, new and wider roads will increase the flow of traffic, resulting in shorter commutes and less wasting of gasoline when stalled in slow traffic.

To boost transportation infrastructure improvements, the Pinal County Board of Supervisors last August voted to create PRTA with a representative from each town in the county on its management board. The first order of business was to draft the transportation plan that was recently finalized.

In November, PRTA is asking voters to approve its transportation plans and to provide funding for the proposed projects by approving a 0.5% increase in the county property tax for the next 20 years. According to Smith, this will cost a typical Pinal County family about $88 per year. But PRTA expects the sales tax hike to be a harder sell in Superior and Mammoth, where the local sales tax is already 10.7%.

By 2036, the tax hike is expected bring in a minimum $500 million to fund proposed projects.

Pinal County would not be alone in taxing residents for transportation improvements. Voters in Maricopa, Pima, Gila and Coconino counties have already approved such taxes, he explained.

PRTA and CAG have filed to have the referendum on the transportation plan and the 0.5% sales tax increase put on the November 8 ballot.

Lady Miners in their 'throwback Thursday' uniforms.

Lady Miners extend winning streak

By Andrew Luberda
San Manuel Miner

The fifth-ranked San Manuel softball team extended its winning streak to five games following wins against Walden Grove, Ray, and Catalina. This is the Lady Miners' second five-game winning streak of the season.

The Lady Miners, who have won 10 of their last 11 games, wore throwback uniforms for their game against Ray last Thursday, a 4 - 3 victory and their second win in three games against the No. 2-ranked Lady Cats this season.

San Manuel pounded out four extra-base hits, including three triples and a double, and saw Dionne Ruiz drive in two runs while Lyana Waddell and Daniela Guerrero had an RBI each in the win. Angela Navarro had two hits in the game, including one of the team's three triples.

Waddell limited the Lady Cats' offense, tossing a complete game where she allowed three runs - two earned - on three hits with a walk and five strikeouts. The win was the senior's ninth of the year with only a lone loss.

Upcoming schedule: Apr. 6 vs. Thatcher (3:45 p.m.) and Apr. 8 at Desert Christian (4 p.m.).
