LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Volunteer opportunities abound throughout Copper Basin area

During this past May, many former residents came back for graduations, weddings or birthdays. While they were happy to be amongst family again, they complained or took pity on our local towns. Their comments were, "How sad it is to see a once thriving town look so bad. How did this happen?" That is a great question. I say it is a revolving door of whose fault it could be. Could it be that the younger generation is moving away and taking their kids to raise in the cities where there are more opportunities? Could it be the company's fault, by transporting workers from those faraway cities to work in the mine, therefore no one is living here? Or could it be that someone is holding the town hostage by buying it all up and letting it deteriorate, therefore reducing the value? Or are we so set in our ways that we don't want change?

Who is fighting for our towns? Residents left here are trying desperately to take pride in their little communities along with organizations like Copper Community Action Board (CCAB), Copper Basin

Chamber of Commerce, Scouts, Brownies or the local students/teachers trying to clean-up with what little we have. The Towns do what they can with what little they get.

Also left behind are the elderly, who are stubborn enough to stick it out in their antiquated homes. I can picture these small towns becoming like the tourist towns of Jerome and Tombstone. Some of our towns are over 100 years old. Buildings have crumbled, but there are a few buildings left, like the elderly...too stubborn to go. I still have hope that one day our communities will rise from the ashes like the name of a city that is just a couple of hours away...

Volunteer and do something about it! The Chamber is hosting a planning retreat for the year on June 21 – join us! Contact the Chamber for more info!

I hope someone reads this and decides they want to help. Not just say, "How sad...."

Just trying to do my part,
/s/ Martina Burnam

The Community Investment Fund Committee solicits and selects programs to receive financial support based on established criteria, and strives to assist in the success of recipient programs. The 2014 grant recipients include:

- Arizona Youth Partnership – $20,000
- Cobre Valley Institute of Technology – $55,000: This grant will provide transportation services for Globe and Miami High School students to participate in college-level career and technical education programs. By making this service available, a barrier to accessing quality educational programs will be removed. As more students participate in programming, additional revenue will be available to further enhance CVIT program offerings.

- Gila County Housing Services – $10,000: Program funding will leverage dollars to assist with the completion of minor home repairs and adaptations that specifically assist elderly and disabled individuals, making their residences safer and allowing them to remain in their homes.

- Gila County Canyon Water Improvement District – $50,000

- Gila Community College – $50,000: Funds will be used to enhance the welding program at the Regional Training Center (RTC) by implementing a Virtual Reality Arc Welder simulator. In doing so, the RTC will be able to attract and engage more students in this high demand program. The simulator also reduces energy consumption, waste and scrap while providing tangible savings that can be used to further enhance important career and college ready program offerings at Gila Community College.

- Globe Unified School District – $38,500

- Miami Genesis – $26,500

- Miami Unified School District – $30,000

- Southern Gila County Economic Development Corporation – $55,000: Funds will be used for a wayfinding and signage project to help build a consistent brand for the region. By working collaboratively, the project will create a systematic, visually cohesive, graphic communication system for visitors and residents in the Copper Circle Region, providing both information and an improved sense of well-being, safety and security in both visitors and residents of the area. The project has the potential to increase the tax base in the region by highlighting the many local assets and amenities in a consistent and professional way.

“Freeport-McMoRan is committed to working with communities to identify effective partnerships that will bring lasting benefits to the people in greater Globe-Miami,” said Tracy Bame, President of the Freeport-McMoRan Foundation. “Through the Globe-Miami Community Investment Fund, our goal is to continue to empower the community to take the lead in identifying and creating the kinds of programs and projects that will help generate sustainable benefits and shape the kind of community they want. We extend our thanks to the members of the Investment Fund Committee and their commitment to increase the community’s capacity to create the community resources needed to ensure a viable future. We also extend our gratitude to the many exemplary leaders and organizations with whom we are fortunate to work in the programs,” she said.
