Roach Fire and the Insidious Growth of the Salt Cedars

Along the San Pedro might be a better title for my column this week. Our hearts and minds are moving in several directions at once: towards anger and grief that the fire took place; towards love and concern for all who are affected; towards thanks and appreciation for all the people who provided, and continue to provide, help and assistance.

The danger is not over. Salt cedar roots can smolder for days before springing back into flames. The heat of the summer continues, and all along the San Pedro and the Gila the salt cedar plants stretch on either side for mile after mile providing the fuel for future disaster.

A hundred years ago the salt cedars were not here. The rivers flowed through natural desert area, with native trees along the banks, especially the willows which provided nesting places for birds.

Then the salt cedar (also known as tamarisk) arrived. It was native to Russia, and was imported to stabilize soil and provide wind breaks. How did it get here? Maybe a farmer in New Mexico planted it, and the Gila carried seeds down the river banks. Maybe birds spread the seeds. However it happened, the salt cedar took root throughout Arizona and grew rapidly, its tenacious roots crowding out other plants. In addition, the invasive plant changes the nature of the soil around it, affecting the nutrient structure in a way that causes other plants to die. This provides more room for the salt cedar to grow and spread, and the cycle goes on.

First steps have been taken to remove at least some of the salt cedar in this area. The Winkelman Natural Resources Conservation District and the Town of Kearny have been cooperating with each other, and with the State of Arizona and U.S. Government, to begin the work. A small amount of money from the Federal Emergency Management Authority (FEMA) is being matched with lots of volunteer labor and offers of equipment from ranchers, home owners, and businesses.

It's not just a matter of tearing up the plants. The roots go deep. The plant multiplies rapidly. Disposing of removed plants can spread the seeds. Since the plant grows mostly beside rivers, we have to take care that our work to get rid of the plant doesn't cause other problems, such as affecting river flow and flood plains, or disturbing the environment of rare species. It would not be good to solve one problem only to create a host of others.

But the problem remains. We have a volatile fuel lining our rivers and surrounding our towns. It will take much cooperation and lots of solid effort to develop a workable approach which removes the salt cedar and moves the river banks to their natural state of a hundred years ago. And what a change that will be!

Firefighters working to fully

Firefighters continue to gain ground on the Roach Fire burning near Dudleyville in and as of Monday evening have the fire 75% contained.

More than 200 firefighters from across Arizona and the Southwest are working to ensure fire lines are holding up due to gusty winds associated with the afternoon monsoons storms. Crews also continue to patrol for hot spots and possible new starts because of lightning strikes. Fire Managers stress that residents may still see flare ups of the fire and shouldn't be alarmed.

The fire quickly moved through salt cedar vegetation along the riverbed. Salt cedar, also known as Tamarisk, is a nuisance and hazard to firefighters. Tamarisk is not only highly flammable, but it causes a fire to burn hotter and faster. Within hours of starting, the Roach Fire grew to three miles long and 1/2 mile wide before air and ground crews had the chance to stop its movement and its growth.

Evacuations were begun immediately by Pinal County Sheriff's Office on Cholla Road near Palo Verde due to the proximity of the fire and the threat to nearby homes.

Eleven buildings were destroyed in the fast moving wildfire, two of which were occupied homes. No information was given on which homes were destroyed.

By midnight Friday, 100 families were evacuated; 500-600 were without power; and 300 homes were without gas. Dudleyville evacuees began returning to their homes on Sunday night. Electrical service was restored by San Carlos Irrigation Project. Southwest Gas utility workers went door to door restoring service Sunday evening and throughout Monday. Power and gas were shut off for safety and it was reported that several power poles had been destroyed in the fire.

The American Red Cross established an evacuation/cooling center at the Hayden High School. Additionally, San Pedro Valley Baptist Church was open for evacuees and was established as the incident command center.

Highway 77 was closed temporarily Friday night, but was reopened by 1:45 a.m. to allow traffic through.

Dudleyville Fire Department was first on scene and was the main responder and dispatcher throughout the emergency. Many other agencies sent firefighters to the scene. The Department of Forestry and Fire Management, the U.S. Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, along with tribal and fire departments from Mammoth, Hayden, Winkelman, Superior, Queen Valley, Oracle, San Manuel, Pinal Rural, Globe, Elephant Head, Picture Rocks, Surprise, Corona de Tucson, Golder Ranch, Rincon Valley, Mesa, Hellsgate, Sun City, Heber-Overgaard, Tubac, Kearny, Pinal County, and Timber-Mesa are collaborating on the fire. Oracle's CERT team was on hand to lend support to the firefighters.

Pinal County Public Works Monday

announced that it will host a cleanup event for fire related debris. Fire damaged items including: appliances, construction material, green waste, large metal objects, refrigerators and structural materials can be taken to the Dudleyville Landfill Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Hazardous and other materials such as fuels, pesticides, fertilizers, propane tanks, motor oil, lubricants, whether damaged by fire or not, cannot be disposed of properly at a landfill. Non-acceptable items also include: anti-freeze, batteries, hazardous waste, household trash, oil, paint and tires. Any residents bringing non-acceptable items will be turned away. No commercial

Additional Lead and Arsenic Testing being scheduled for Hayden & Winkelman this fall

The Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR), an organization within the Federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, has announced that they have received approval to offer follow up urine arsenic testing for Hayden and Winkelman residents who participated in the April 2015 testing. The ATSDR plans to offer the testing sometime between October - December 2017, but have not set any official dates.

ATSDR does plan to work with the community to possibly coordinate their testing during other community events.

ATSDR is offering this follow up arsenic testing because they need more information to determine how much arsenic participants have in their bodies when air pollution levels are typical for the community.

The smelter was shut down for maintenance during the 2015 testing, which lowered arsenic and lead in the air. ATSDR plans to communicate with ASARCO to ensure the follow up testing will occur when the plant is operating normally. The results from the first phase of testing were released several months ago, the results did not return a higher than normal level of arsenic or lead in the individuals tested.

ASARCO currently is conducting a major smelter retrofit that was ordered under a consent decree with the Environmental Protection Agency. The retrofit will further improve the air quality in the Hayden/Winkelman area.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Long Days of Sunshine

Summer is in full swing, the weather is warm, with long days of sunshine! We all have our favorite summer pastime to spend our vacation. It sometimes seems it can take as much time to plan and get ready for a vacation as it does actually doing it! Some off to the mountains, to the beach, to a new city sightseeing, what a great time of the year!

I remember growing up back in Ohio, all I needed was a fishing pole, an old coffee can with a few worms, and I was set for a day at the pond fishing. If it got a little warm, I would jump in and do a little swimming, get out and back to fishing. Summers were fun, best of all no school.

Summer can be that time of much needed rest from our busy schedules or a time of non-stop hiking, biking, traveling and sightseeing! Whatever it is it's always better with someone, some family or friends.

For those who stay here, Family First is open all summer long, with doors open wide to help our families here in our community.

Story time is a little busier this time of year, along with many new clients who now have more time, with school out, to come into the center for classes. Also with school out, our "Ten for Teens" kids are spending more time helping at our centers. We are so grateful to them for all that they do!

Whatever you may do, we pray you have a fun, safe and relaxing summer, enjoy it for the special time that it is!

God Bless,
/s/ Frank & Clare Grochocki
