Guest Editorial: Resolution Copper cleans up century- worth of legacy mining

Special to the Superior Sun

What does a century's worth of mining activity do to a landscape?

David Lira, a lifetime Superior resident, knows firsthand the impacts a booming mine has on a community and the families that call it home.

"If it wasn't for the mine there would've never been a Superior," he said. "With the mine come the jobs and all the people who make it their living. And that also brings the disadvantages mining has on the land," he said. "But that's what mining is."

Superior lies in the heart of the historic Pioneer Mining District, nestled between the border of Tonto National Forest and the red cliffs of Apache Leap. Its saguaro, arroyos and barrel cactus-covered hills are dotted with the remnants of more than a century-worth of legacy mining endeavors.

Lira was the quintessential jack-of-all-trades when it came to mining; he spent 47 years in the business. A mechanic and welder by trade, he worked as a maintenance supervisor at the mill under Magma Copper Company and for a brief stint, served as Superior community liaison for BHP Billiton.

He was on the front lines the day in 1990 when heavy rains caused Magma's #3 and #4 tailings north of town to fail and the sand-like material breached low-lying properties between Pinal Street and the company fence line.

"When that happened, every underground miner had to come up and start shoveling tails off people's property," he remembers. As part of his job, he had to individually survey and test more than 120 affected private parcels for traces of metals and contaminants.

"Before then, we [Magma] never had an environmental person.

Improvements to the monitoring system were implemented by the company around the late 80s," he says. To many lifetime Superiorites the acres of waste-rock piles, process ponds and tailings impoundments to the north of town are as familiar a landmark as Picket Post Mountain to the west.

To Resolution Copper Mining these legacy mining remnants are part of the extensive cleanup the company pledges to accomplish before commencing operations on the proposed mine at Oak Flat, explains Casey McKeon, environmental manager at Resolution Copper. Reclamation and cleanup work is especially important to McKeon; she moved to Superior to work on the project and wants to see her town thriving and healthy.

"Resolution Copper plans to be part of the community for decades. We want our presence to contribute to a better future, which is why we remain dedicated to reclamation work and to permitting and building a modern mine that is safe and a showcase of environmental stewardship," she said.

To date, Resolution Copper has spent more than two-thirds of a $50 million reclamation budget and plans to clean up about 1,500 acres of previously affected lands near Superior. The company will simultaneously do reclamation work as it progresses exploration, engineering and environmental studies.

"Our focus for the future is to continue rehabilitating the West Plant site north of town until the job is done, and the majority of that cleanup work is being completed by local contractors such as CRC [Copper Resource Contracting], Albo Guzman Trucking and Superior Environmental Solutions," said McKeon.

Lira has high expectations for the future of Superior. He's hopeful that future will include many lifelong careers at Resolution Copper for Superior's youth. The project is expected to create 3,700 American job – 1,400 of those working directly for and at the mine. The mine will generate $1 billion annually in economic benefits for Arizona, and create more than $19 billion in federal, state and local tax revenue over its lifetime.

Staggering economic figures aside, for Lira, it all comes down to staying true to one's roots.

"When Resolution gets going, and I hope they do, they need to take a good look at the community," he says with conviction. "They need to hire locally as much as possible... and just respect the hometown."

He has an ally in McKeon. "We all have family and friends who

David Lira, lifetime Superior resident and former Magma Copper Company and BHP Billiton employee, has high hopes for the future of Town of Superior. That future could include lifelong careers for Superior residents at Resolution Copper. (Submitted photo) call Superior home," she says. "We want it to prosper. We share a sense of pride in the community. Our investment in and commitment to proper land rehabilitation is one way we have of demonstrating that pride."

Pastor's Corner – Honoring God's Temple

By Rev. Dennis Van Gorp
Family Life Christian Center

1 Corinthians 3: 16 & 17 tell us: "Don't you know that you yourselves are God's Temple and that God's Spirit lives in you? . . . God's Temple is sacred, and you are that Temple."

When Moses received the instructions for the Tabernacle, it was to be made of the finest woods, minerals and cloth available. Only the best would be good enough for the Lord.

When King Solomon, and later on Herod, built their Temples; again, the construction was of the best and finest of materials and workmanship. The clothing of the priests was bright and beautiful. Only the best was good enough for God's house.

Our passage says that you and I are God's temples. In that case, our 'temple' – our body, should be in the best condition. Daniel and his three friends, refused to eat the food from the king's table. It was lavish, sweet and good.

They instead insisted on fresh fruits and vegetables, with water to drink. The Lord caused them to have strong and healthy bodies.

As a believer in God, we should pay attention to the condition of our bodies, our 'temple.' It should be kept healthy and strong, capable of doing the work the Lord has laid out for us to do, in and for His kingdom. Don't let it get tired out and run down. Keep the faith and keep your health. Honor God by honoring His sacred Temple!

Superior ideas for Back to School!

Superior Schools begin the new year with an All Grades Open House on Tuesday, July 23, 2013 at 6 p.m. in the Jr/Sr High Multi-purpose room. Following some general information and introductions, the elementary students will go to meet their teachers and the Jr/Sr high will get their class schedules. Classes for all grades, K-12 begin the next morning, July 24, 2013.

As the new school year is quickly approaching Superior Schools would like to offer some advice for parents and students to prepare a smooth transition into a successful year. By communicating with your student now, many decisions and anxious moments can be eliminated.

As parents, we often celebrate the beginning of a new school year with a shopping trip for clothes and supplies. Other activities can include talking with you student about their ideas of ways and things to help them be more successful. Also, discussing how many hours sleep they need to feel rested for school and how much preparation time they feel they need in the morning. Students may also have firm ideas of what is necessary for their study/homework area at home, as well as discussing the appropriate amount of time to set aside each day for study/homework. A discussion about breakfast and lunch options for the students can also clarify those situations. Finally, visiting the school and meeting the teacher, secretary, and bus driver can provide a calming feeling during the transition to a new school year.

Best of luck to you and your children as preparations are made for them in the New Year! Work with your student to begin routines to develop habits before the first day of school and you will both notice a smoother transition.

Parents are encouraged to please visit Superior Schools and discuss our successes and programs. We are located at 1500 Sunset Dr. in Superior and can be reached at 520-689-3000.

parents and care givers with service providers that can assist with counseling and other social services.

The kids and their parents were also treated to a free hot dog lunch. The United Dance Crew from Coolidge entertained the crowd throughout the afternoon.

They performed several of their prevention skits and dances and also did interactive dances and games with the kids in attendance.

Each year the SSAC awards the prevention booths who have the best decorations. This year Native Air was the first place winner with their fishing pond booth and Resolution Copper was the runner up with their Hawaiian themed booth.

This year the majority of the expenses for the event were funded with a grant from Cenpatico Behavioral Health. The Superior Unified School District, Town of Superior, Pinal County Sheriff's Office, Resolution Copper and the Superior Optimist Club also helped to sponsor the event.

Superior Little League teams advance to state tournaments

By Mila Besich Lira

While the lights at the Little League field have been off for a few weeks and the dust has settled, the Little League season is still going on for the boys Junior League All Star baseball team and the girls Senior League All Star Softball team. Both teams won the Little League All Star District Tournaments in Coolidge last week and will represent Superior and the District at the State Tournaments this week.

At the district level both teams played teams from Casa Grande, Coolidge, Florence, Eloy, Mammoth/San Manuel and Maricopa.

The girls Senior League softball team will be playing in Cottonwood. There are seven teams in the double elimination tournament. If the girls win this tournament they will head to Montana to play in the Little League Softball sectional tournaments.

The boys Junior League baseball team will be traveling to Sierra Vista for their league State Tournament. There are 14 teams in their tournament.

If the boys win this tournament they will travel to Washington to play in the Junior League Baseball sectional tournaments.

Both teams played their first games on Tuesday, July 16. Follow Copper Area News on Facebook, to keep up with the teams (www.fb.com/copperarea).

Fire

"Internal Disaster" protocol at approximately 5:40 p.m.

Emergency patients being transported by ground ambulance were diverted to other facilities while the Gila County Sheriff's Department and Globe Police Department controlled traffic at the south end of Hospital Drive. A registered nurse was also posted along with law enforcement to provide triage to emergency patients transported by private vehicle.

With all power shut down, patient areas and medical monitoring equipment continued, uninterrupted with emergency power. 25 patients were in the hospital (5 ER, 3 ICU, 11 Med/Surg, 6 OB) at the time the fire started and their safety remained the highest priority.

"We are so thankful and grateful to all our local fire agencies, Globe, Canyon, and Tri-City, for their quick response to our emergency and their expert assistance. We are very fortunate to have this level of emergency responders in our community," stated Neal Jensen, CVRMC CEO. "I am proud of our staff who displayed calmness and professionalism and kept our patients' needs at the forefront."

Marcanti Electric began repairing the power supply at approximately 6:30 p.m. and by 9:30 p.m., the electricity was restored by re-energizing the power disconnects one at a time, testing and confirming the electrical power of each area of the hospital before bringing the next power disconnect on-line.

"The heroic efforts of Marcanti Electric to get CVRMC back to full power were incredible. Their knowledge, expertise and diligence is recognized and commended," commented Mr. Jensen. "We owe them, and everyone on scene Tuesday evening, much appreciation."
