LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Benson announces resignation from Superior School Board

Due to illness, I am submitting my resignation as a member of the Superior Unified School District Governing Board effective July 15, 2015. I feel I can no longer contribute to the capacity that is necessary to be of good service to the District.

I want to thank the people of Superior for the many years of service they have allowed me to give to the District. First, I came in as a young, immature English teacher and with the support of the community, parents, students and colleagues I believe I grew to understand that teaching and learning needed to be student-centered and everything else will fall into place. Secondly, as a counselor I was able to hone those skills in a different arena where I learned that students can go as far as their dreams may carry them. As educators we merely act as their guides and help them find the opportunities that are in store for them. Lastly, the electors of the community elected me to sit on the Governing Board and put their faith in me to make decisions that will be beneficial for our school district. During the seven plus years I have served on the Board I have learned that as long as our decisions are based on what is right for our students, we can't go wrong.

I also want to thank my colleagues on the Board over the years. I feel that we worked very hard and collaboratively, thinking only of the good of the District. My best wishes will always be with the School District and if I can continue in any kind of advisory capacity, please always feel free to call.

Sincerely,
/s/ Cynthia Benson

Immigration and the local miners

Funny. Not funny, Ha Ha! Just odd.

You read about it in the newspaper and hear about it on TV or on the radio, the presidential candidates talking about immigration. They talk about building a fence on our southern border. Immigrants come from all over not just Mexico. Not all illegals swim across a river, climb over or under a fence. Many immigrants enter legally through visas. Travel visas, work visas and some stay after their visas run out, making them illegal.

I understand some companies hire contractors from out of the country to come into the U.S. to do work. Resolution Copper hired Cementation, a Canadian company, to sink the number ten shaft. They brought in Canadian miners, experienced shaft sinkers brought in to help sink the shaft. They also hired local miners, both experienced and inexperienced, which was great. That is what they said they would do.

The shaft is done and a small group of miners, mechanics and electricians were kept to maintain the shaft and mine. I hear Cementation has a supervisor from Canada in charge of the small group of miners. Really, Resolution Copper and Cementation couldn't find someone local for the job? Maybe the politicians should be told not all migrants who take away American jobs come from Mexico.

Copper Alliance speaks to Superior Town Council

By John Hernandez
Superior Sun

Last month, citizens opposed to the Resolution Copper Project presented their views, concentrating on Oak Flats and the cultural significance that some members of the San Carlos Apache Indian Tribe place on the area.

This month, those who are in favor of the project presented their side of the issue to the Superior Town Council at a special meeting held Aug. 13.

The Superior Copper Alliance is a group that was “founded to support and promote responsible economic development in Superior and hold elected officials accountable” according to its Facebook page. They are changing the name to Copper Community Alliance to welcome those people from other communities outside Superior that are interested in joining their group and that support responsible mining and the Resolution Copper project.

Five members spoke out in support of the Rio Tinto Resolution Copper project in Superior:

Carl Vogler, Susan Anderson, Tiffany Rowell, Karen Jones and Kathy Kitcheyan. They said there is a lot of conflicting information and misinformation about the project being spread by people and in the media.

One of the major points that those opposed to the project have said is that Apache Leap will collapse subsiding as the minerals are mined deep under the local wonder. Those who spoke last week refuted that claim. They also refuted the claim that rock climbing will be prevented. In fact, one of the presenters said, Resolution will set aside additional places for rock climbing.

If the project is approved and finalized, the Resolution Copper project will provide 25 percent of the copper needed by the United States; 3,700 jobs will be created; $20 million will be paid in state taxes. They also said that 84 percent of the people in the corridor support the mine opening.

Two members of the San Carlos Apache Tribe spoke about the high rate of unemployment (75 percent) on the San Carlos Reservation and that Oak Flats was never a sacred area for the Apache.

Kathy Kitcheyan is an educator and a former Chairwoman of the San Carlos Apache Tribal Council. She opened her speech in Apache and then explained in English that it is traditional when an Apache speaks in public to “acknowledge our clans.” Kathy told the Superior Town Council that her father was a medicine man and other ancestors were also medicine men. She is one of the few tribal members that can read and write the Apache language.

Kathy talked about the oral traditions of her people where history was not written but passed along in stories. She said that it was “never ever mentioned that Oak Flats was of significant interest or value.” She said it was a “rest stop” and an area where acorns were gathered. Even now she added, the Elders who do not want to speak about it have told her that Oak Flat is not sacred land.

She also talked about the youth needing employment, that they are losing hope and that a “silent majority” of the people on the reservation support the opening of the mine.

Go online to www.copperarea.com to view a video from last week’s meeting. A link will also be posted on the newspaper’s Facebook page at www.facebook.com/copperarea.

A delicious way to use the fruit of a prickly pear

"But how do you prepare it?" folks will ask.

Looking at the magenta pink fruit of the prickly pear, it has a light coating of little spines which a lot of people don't see until they touch it. That purply-pink color just tempts you to taste it.

And its taste? Tastes like prickly pear!

"Bubble gum," some youngsters will decide. Well, sort of. "Strawberry?" a young lady will ask, sampling the fruit or juice for the first time. Yes, it tastes like a red fruit, but it's like trying to compare a peach with a mango. Yes... but!

"Prickly pear is a taste all of its own," a new friend opined the other day when we were trying to pin down the taste. I guess the best way to describe it, is to eat it. Then YOU decide!

Vendors at the Prickly Pear Festival this year will be glad to sell you some of their wares so you can decide for yourself what the taste is. You'll find syrup, jelly, cookies, truffles, breads and candies featuring the red fruit of the cactus. You can sample pancakes with prickly pear syrup at the Superior Fireman's Pancake Breakfast early in the day. You can hear lectures on how to pick the fruit, make your own juice and then your syrup or puree for yourself. You will also learn how to find it, the best way to pick it, so you won't get spines in your fingers and how to use it. A recipe for making your own cookies is included here for First Timers. It is such a succulent taste, it won't be your last!

Betcha can't eat just one!

PRICKLY PEAR THUMBPRINT COOKIES

Makes 2 ½ dozen cookies

¾ cup butter, softened
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
¼ cup canola oil
2 teaspoons vanilla
3 cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon almond extract
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
2/3 cup chopped pecans
2 egg whites
8 ounces prickly pear jelly

In a mixing bowl, cream butter, oil and sugar. Beat in two whole eggs. Add vanilla and almond extracts. Combine the flour, cornstarch, baking powder and salt. Stir into creamed mixture. Roll into 1 ½" balls. In a small bowl, lightly beat egg whites until frothy. Dip each ball halfway into egg white mixture, then roll into chopped pecans. Place nut side up 2" apart on baking sheets coated with non-stick cooking spray or parchment sheets. Using the end of a wooden spoon handle, make an indentation in the center of each cookie.

Bake at 350 degrees (F) for 8-10 minutes until the edges are browned. Remove from the oven and cool.

Fill each cookie with ½ to 1 teaspoon of prickly pear jelly. Cool.

Superior Fire Department to kick off Prickly Pear Festival with pancake breakfast

You can get an early start at the Prickly Pear Festival on Saturday, Aug. 22, by coming out at 7 a.m. to Porter's Café, 404 W. Main St., to eat pancakes with prickly pear syrup and support the hard working gang at the Superior Fire Department fundraising breakfast.

Could this be the year the Panthers have been waiting for?

By Andrew Luberd
Superior Sun

Two years ago the Panthers football teams finished the 2013 season with only one win and a number of lopsided losses.

Despite the difficult results there was reason for optimism as more than half the roster was made up of freshmen and sophomores. Head coach Ryan Palmer practiced patience with a core group of youngsters with the idea the Panthers were investing in the future.

Last season, perhaps unexpectedly, the Panthers made vast improvements, going 6 – 4 and reaching the playoffs, even advancing to the second round.

But it's fair to say this upcoming season is the season most were looking forward to two seasons ago.

"I feel that this team is one of the most talented in the state at the skilled positions," Palmer told the Superior Sun in an email. "We have speed, ability and experience. All are very important components of a great football team."

"It's exciting coming into this season and looking at how we've evolved into the team we are now," said senior captain Eli Olmos, who was a sophomore on 2013 team. "We're all on the same page and it's a group of guys I wouldn't trade for anyone else."

Ironically, the Panthers will require contributions from young or inexperienced players to fill some open positions on the team, especially along the offensive line.

"To be a truly great team and make a playoff run you must have depth and strength," Palmer said. "We are working on building depth with some of these younger players and will continue to improve on strength throughout the season."

Palmer issued a challenge to his team to be "All In" during the offseason, putting in the extra work in the weight room and during summer passing leagues. The team responded with the best summer program Palmer has seen in his nine years as the school.

"This was the first year since I've been in high school that we've had a (full commitment) and enough guys to have a full scrimmage during the summer," said Olmos, support Palmer's claim. "You could tell we have different expectations this year. Our commitment has improved drastically over the last two years."

It's apparent the players believe they could be on the verge of special season and this, in fact, could be the year they've been waiting for. But don't expect overconfidence to set in.

"This is a great group of young men. They have plenty of experience, they know what type of effort it takes win, and they know what it is like to lose," Palmer said. "I am not worried about them being over confident."

Nicolaus Cruz returns at quarterback for the Panthers and likely will be in the conversation for Player of the Year honors later this season. He's the epitome of a dual-threat quarterback, throwing for almost 2,000 and 24 touchdowns in addition to rushing more than 1,000 yards and 19 touchdowns in 2014.

Olmos is one of six receivers who caught a touchdown pass last season and figures to be among the team leaders in that category this season. On defense, the senior team captain led the Panthers with three interceptions.

Junior Edgar Pacheco rushed for 750 yards and 10 touchdowns last season, but his biggest contribution was on the defensive side, where he led the Panthers with 104 tackles.

Junior Jalon Murray led the team with nine sacks a year ago.

Indeed, this could be a special season for the Panthers and it kicks off on Aug. 28 at Ft. Thomas. The season opener is scheduled for 7 p.m.

and support the life-saving services we provide.”

Resolution is in the process of planning and permitting a proposed copper mining operation that could create approximately 3,700 jobs, generate over $60 billion in economic impact and result almost $20 billion in state and federal tax payments.

“In everything we do, safety is our first priority.

That means having plans and processes in place to reduce risk and prevent on-the-job accidents, but it also means partnering with the community to ensure we have well-trained, well-equipped first responders,” said Andrew Taplin, project director for Resolution. “By supporting the Queen Valley Fire District, we help ensure Queen Valley and the surrounding areas have access to dependable fire, rescue and emergency medical services.”

Resolution has a long history of supporting the community, and contributes to education, environmental and community and human development program throughout the Copper Triangle region.

In addition to serving Queen Valley, the Fire District is often dispatched to Superior as part of the auto aid system, and is called upon to fight wildfires throughout the area.

Queen Valley Fire District provides fire, search and rescue, emergency medical services, and wildfire fighting among the community and surrounding areas in Queen Valley, Arizona. The District employs three full-time firefighters/EMTs and is supported by approximately 30 volunteers.

The Resolution Copper Project is operated by Resolution Copper Mining, which is a limited liability company owned 55 percent by Resolu-

Resolution Copper employs local workers to reclaim over 11 acres of historical mining land

Resolution Copper is proud to announce a contract award to two local contractors, Oddenetto Construction from Globe and Albo Trucking from Superior. During the next four months, 24 to 26 workers from the Copper Triangle, including San Carlos Apache Reservation, will reclaim approximately 11.5 acres of historical mining land.

The project is located on Resolution Copper's West Plant property, in an area historically known as the "Lower Smelter Pond." Following the completion of the brush removal last year, Resolution Copper will complete reclamation by replacing previously contaminated soil with clean soil and vegetation.

"To date, we have spent more than two-thirds of a $50 million budget," said Casey McKeon, Superior resident and environmental manager for Resolution Copper. "It is our commitment to the community, that we will continue to cleanup and reclaim the historic Magma Mine tailings area to a more natural state."

Work begins Monday, Aug. 17, and will take place Monday through Saturday from 7 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Resolution Copper will monitor the noise and air quality throughout the duration of the project.

Residents who have questions about the reclamation work can call the Resolution Copper community line at 520.689.3409.
