Primary Election Rapidly Approaching

The primary election is this Tuesday, Aug. 28. If you have voted by mail, you have my congratulations for being a good citizen. If you haven't voted, remember TUESDAY in large capital letters. The primary in Arizona tends to be more consequential than the general election, so study the issues and the people and vote accordingly. Remember, local elections are included in the primary ballot.

I don't know how many are aware of the work of Arizona's conservation districts, including our own Winkelman Natural Resource Conservation District, but I suspect the number is not high. The WNRCD meets quarterly for several hours. It has an elected Board of Supervisors. Rancher and businessman Bill Dunn is the current chairman, and Barbara McGuire is a newly elected supervisor.

The WNRCD is known as the most involved and effective of all the conservation districts in Arizona. It is involved in monitoring natural resources (water, vegetation, birds and fish and other animals), and it serves as a healthy "talking place" for ranchers and other businesses to meet with state and federal officials and members of conservation organization.

It has monitored endangered species in the area and conducted an extensive study of turtle habitats in the region. It has helped in the planning for new electrical line installations in order to protect sensitive areas and ensure the continuance of cattle raising. The WNRCD has also cooperated with the Town of Kearny in seeking a grant to eliminate tamarisk growth in the town's fire line.

More than that, it has promoted agricultural training in our local schools, including help with local gardens. It is working with people in Oracle to develop a nursery for local plants to use along fire-ravaged areas and to widen support for farming. The group has worked with Central Arizona College at Aravaipa and, each summer, provides scholarships for several children to attend College for Kids. It is developing an Educational Center to enrich this area.

Ranchers, farmers, and just-interested people are doing a great job without much public notice. And, I must tell you, they have a potluck at each of the meetings which puts even church potlucks to shame!

This hot summer had made things difficult. The word I hear is that town citizens have done a good job in conserving water, avoiding the consequence of water restrictions. Continue to monitor your own use, but be sure to keep

Town of Kearny for the eradication of highly-flammable tamarisks (also known as salt cedars) along the town lands which border the Gila River. The whole project will have a $93,000 budget.

One hundred and five acres of Kearny lands are involved. The grant from FEMA will be matched with voluntary labor and the loan of equipment. It is anticipated that inmates from the state prison at Perryville will assist with manual labor. Much of the work will be contracted out using grant funds.

The WNRCD has been patiently shepherding this project with assistance from the State of Arizona, keeping the Town of Kearny involved. The news from Willie Sommers was given at a work session with the WNRCD last week.

If final approval comes soon, the work could begin by Oct. 1. All work must be brought to completion by March 31, when protected birds make their return to the area.

Arizona State Forester Willie Sommers speaks about the grant process as WNRCD Clerk Christ Postel and Chairman Bill Dunn listen.

Supervisor Pete Rios delivers checks to local organizations

July 1 has come and gone and Pinal County's 2018-19 budget is set and those approved contributions are being delivered to organizations who assist the Pinal County Board of Supervisors expand their services and support for local non-profits who help the county deliver important services.

Supervisor Rios, delivered a check to the Copper Corridor Economic Development Coalition, (CCEDC) for $50,000.

"The Copper Corridor Economic Development Coalition has an important role to play, we must ensure the economic future of our county, cities and towns. This entity provides exceptional assistance and direction to business oriented groups that keep the economy moving," he said.

The CCEDC uses these funds to further local economic development activities for communities throughout the Copper Corridor.

"We greatly appreciate the support of Supervisor Rios and the Pinal County Board of Supervisors, their support helps us to further our projects for Regional Tourism Branding, development of a regional local foods hub, and our liaison services for the USDA 504 housing funding," said Mila Besich-Lira, Executive Director of the CCEDC.

Another significant contribution to the area was a $20,000 donation to the Hayden Senior Center. This funding helps to defray many of the costs for the Senior Food Program. The Hayden Senior Center has the responsibility for providing both homebound and Senior Center food services through the entire Copper Corridor. The service area includes the communities of Oracle, Kearny, Mammoth, San Manuel, Dudleyville, Hayden, Winkelman and all places in between.

"It's important to take care of our greatest generation, our senior citizens who built this country. We must ensure their safety, health and well-being," said Supervisor Rios.

Pinal County Supervisor Pete Rios made the rounds recently delivering county support to two local organizations: the Hayden Senior Center (left) and the Copper Corridor Economic Development Coalition. Both organizations are grateful for the show of support.

Home-away-from-home field advantage: Ray defeats Duncan in season opener

By Andrew Luberdia

Copper Basin News

A last-minute change of venue didn't have much effect on the Ray football team last Friday night after a blown transformer forced the Bearcats to host Duncan in their "home" opener at Hayden High School.

Ray later turned out the lights on the Wildkats with a 24 – 0 victory.

The Cats jumped out to an 8 – 0 lead in the opening quarter before putting the game away in the fourth with a pair of touchdowns. The defense, according to Ray assistant coach Jimmy Fessenden, was the difference in the game.

"(Overall), we played a decent game considering that our team was ready to play when the transformer blew but we have room for improvement," Fessenden told Copper Basin News. "Our defense played with heart and intensity.

The (defensive) line and backfield all stepped up, and our first-year players played well."

Ray will host Mogollon this Friday. The Mustangs did not play in week one.

"I want our team to carry over (the same) intensity to this week," Fessenden said. "(We need) to see improvement with our linemen on both sides firing off the ball quicker and our linebackers filling the gaps."

Kickoff is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Jaden Pace carries the ball while Johnavon Pace and Angel Manriquez come in for the assist.

Jaden Pace, with the ball, evades a Wildkat defender while Eric Manriquez comes to his aid.

Eric Manriquez makes a great catch at Friday night's game against Duncan.

Jayden Lagunas (10) and Julian Becerra (54) come in help Jaden Pace, who has the ball. James Carnes | CBN

Ray Unified School District would like to thank Hayden High School for hosting the game Friday night.

Inmate worker saves life at Hayden Senior Center

By John Hernandez
Copper Basin News

It started out as just another day at work for Gloria Waddell in the kitchen at the Hayden Senior Center.

While eating something, a piece of food became lodged in her throat. She found herself unable to breathe or communicate with her fellow workers. The other people working in the kitchen saw what was happening but panicked and did not know what to do. Gloria was turning blue and felt herself, going limp and about to blackout. "I thought, this is it. I'm going to die," Gloria said.

At that time a prison inmate worker, Louie Ojeda, who was working in the back of the kitchen, came to her rescue. Louie is a prison inmate from Arizona State Prison in Globe. He is part of an inmate crew that works at the senior center and for the Town of Hayden.

Louie, without thinking, went to Gloria's aid and performed the Heimlich maneuver on her. It took two thrusts before the food in her throat was dislodged and she was able to breathe again. He had saved her life.

Louie has been working at the Hayden Senior Center for three years. He said that he learned the Heimlich maneuver as part of his training for the prison wildland fire crew that he used to be a part of. He is due to be released in 94 days.

Gloria Waddell says her family is thankful that Louie was there.

"He saved my life," she said.

Gloria gets emotional when talking about the incident.

"It's a very scary feeling," she recounted.

Gloria said that her husband, the kitchen workers and the Town of Hayden wrote letters to thank Louie.

On Monday Aug. 20, 2018, staff from the prison in Globe, kitchen workers and members of the Waddell family honored Louie at the Hayden Senior Center. Deputy Warden Sammy Rogers from the Globe facility presented Louie with a framed Certificate of Appreciation.

"I am extremely proud of Louie," Rogers said.

The certificate said it was awarded "for outstanding performance, in saving a human life and showing display of initiative, capability. Thereby earning the respect for himself, community and the Arizona Department of Corrections."

Gloria spoke at the ceremony, tearing up, as she said, "Without him I would not be here. He is my guardian angel."
