EPA proposal could have disruptive effect of flow of electricity, state House committee told

Move to limit CO2 emissions would shift electricity generation from coal to gas-fired plants

By James J. Hodl
Copper Area News

Federal rules proposed to substantially improve air quality nationwide could have a negative effect on the health of Arizona citizens and the state economy, according to testimony at a public meeting of the Arizona House Committee on Energy, Environment and Natural Resources held on August 22 in Globe.

A plan proposed in June by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets a national goal of reducing emissions of carbon dioxide (CO2). These trims will be based on the emission levels of these gases in 2005 and states will be required to decide how to make these trims based on individual goals EPA will set for each state.

While the EPA proposal is still in the comment period until October 16 and a final rule is not expected until June 2, 2015, based on the proposed rule, Arizona will have the second highest goal to meet in the country. And that, according to Beth Hager, director of public affairs with the Arizona Department of Environmental

ASARCO plans $100 million upgrade of Hayden smelter to meet new EPA sulfur dioxide emission limits

Project not expected to disrupt operation of plant or employees' hours

By James J. Hodl
Copper Area News

Plans for a $110 million upgrade of the Hayden copper smelter that will bring the apparatus in compliance with new federal regulations concerning emissions of sulfur dioxide (SO₂) have been filed by owner ASARCO/Grupo Mexico with the Arizona Department of Environmental Quality (ADEQ).

The rules issued by the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) require that SO₂ emissions from the smelter be reduced from 140 ppb (parts per billion) to 75 ppb during a 24-hour period. The Hayden smelter has until Oct. 3, 2018 to meet this standard.

Meeting the standard is important to keep the Hayden copper smelting plant operating and providing employment for residents of the Hayden/Winkelman area.

To meet EPA's goal, the plan ASARCO filed on June 24 with ADEQ describes a converter retrofit project that will replace the smelter's five current 13-ft. diameter converters with three 15-ft. diameter converters. Also included in the plan are the installation of improved primary and secondary hoods, and an electrostatic precipitator for solids removal prior to SO₂ recapture at the smelter's existing acid plants. Larger ladles (300 cu. ft. instead of 200 cu. ft.) will be installed to reduce the number of hot metal transfers. Additional upgrades will capture secondary gases and direct them to the acid plant for conversion to a sulfuric acid product.

Overall the plan aims to reduce SO₂ emissions at the Hayden smelter by 85 percent, with a total SO₂ capture rate of 99.7 percent of what is produced during the copper smelting process.

The plans were made public during a meeting of the Arizona House Committee on Energy, Environment and Natural Resources held Aug. 22 at the Gila

Community College Pueblo Campus in Globe.

ADEQ is expected to rule on the ARARCO plan by late September. If approved the plan will then go to EPA for an additional 45-day comment period. With EPA approval, ASARCO could begin work on the upgrades before year's end.

Besich-Lira to be Recognized with Award for Exemplary Leadership

Phoenix, Arizona—Valle del Sol will be recognizing Superior Councilwoman Mila Besich-Lira with a 2014 Exemplary Leadership Award at its annual Profiles of Success Hispanic Leadership Awards Celebration on Friday, September 5, 2014, at the Phoenix Convention Center.

“Every year, we meet champions who make our Arizona community a better place at Profiles of Success, said Kurt Sheppard, Valle del Sol’s President & CEO. Adding, “This year, we’ll be meeting the cheerleaders who heighten our community’s quality of life. We’re excited to be honoring Councilwoman Besich-Lira.”

This award recognizes individuals who have contributed a number of consistent years toward Hispanic issues, giving their personal time and making a significant difference to the communities they serve. Profiles of Success is a statewide recognition event that kicks-off National Hispanic Heritage Month in Arizona. More information is available at <http://bit.ly/XJuqKk>.

Mila Besich-Lira Biography

Over the years, Mila Besich-Lira has spent at least 20 hours a month working on community activities. This passion for helping others began when Mila was in high school, when she became involved in the Superior Substance Abuse Coalition, an organization she continues to be involved with today.

Over the past eight years, Mila has strived to help her community through politics. For example, she served on the Superior School Board and Town Council. For Mila, politics suits her well and she is excited to use her time and resources to help make Superior an even better place to live and work.

Currently, Mila is a member of the Superior Chamber of Commerce, where she has also served as Secretary and on the Board of Directors. She also helped found the Superior Optimist Club, which has an emphasis on youth development, and the Superior Copper Alliance, which focuses on economic development.

In addition to being the past Secretary of the Superior Little League Board of Directors, Mila currently serves on the Superior Unified School District Governing Board and is a member of the Superior Town Council.

Mila possesses a natural knack for combining resources with the right people in order to make wonderful things happen. A great example of this talent is her work on the Legends of Superior Trail. Mila worked with the Town of Superior to raise money for the project and helps to plan a large yearly event and other smaller events to raise funds for the project. Mila attributes her passion for helping people throughout Superior and the surrounding region to her strong family values.

Mila, through her company Miracle Executive Services, works with Albo Trucking and the Copper Corridor Economic Development Coalition. She manages the CCEDC’s Mobile Visitor’s Center.

Editor’s note: Mila Besich-Lira also works with us at Copper Area News Publishers as both a reporter and director of advertising. This is the second time she has worked for the newspapers. She was the Superior Sun sports reporter when she was in high school.

Superior's Prickly Pear

By Mila Besich-Lira
Superior Sun

Once again, the Superior Chamber of Commerce and their well oiled machine of volunteers and community advocates hosted a successful event. Prickly Pear Committee Chairman Michael Hing reported that they estimated 600-700 people attended the event.

Each class was filled with people looking to learn more about the edible cactus, they purchased jams, jellies, cookies and art by the bundles and just about everyone stopped into the cactus cafe (chamber office) to try one of Jean Groen award winning prickly pear margaritas.

Nearly all of the restaurants had a prickly pear item on their menu, most restaurants reported selling out of their particular menu items.

If you missed the event this year, or maybe you were wondering what all the commotion was, don't miss it next year, it will be even bigger and better.

Superior Head Start Happenings

Superior preschoolers head off to school, the first of firsts

Superior - The students and staff of Superior Head Start had their first day of the new school year on Monday, Aug. 25. There were many new students and parents, joining the veteran families, to tour and visit the center. As they explored, the children gave the staff a charming peek into their personalities, showing something of their strengths and abilities before ever a formal lesson had begun.

While some children roamed the center, independently, peeking into each area, others held a parental hand while pointing to books on the shelves, the Circle Time carpet and selected hollow wooden blocks which were set out for play.

Many children exclaimed "Look it! It's a kitchen!" One child announced, "I like school." Others asked, "Where is the swing?" One child walked into the center and bravely called out a greeting, "Hi, Teacher!", and, another simply smiled and hugged Teacher Teresita. One child held a large plastic dinosaur, and, while using a toy stethoscope to "listen to the dinosaur's heartbeat," said, "He's okay at school." All commented they are ready to start school! "Wish us well as we begin another program year focusing on safety, nutrition, literacy, health and other various school readiness activities," said Teresita Martinez-Olmos.

The teaching staff will model safety in & outside the classroom, healthy eating habits, conscious discipline, and, the importance of class agreements to help keep children and staff safe," she continued.

This year marks the National Head Start's 50th year of providing services. The Pinal Gila Community Child Services, Inc. has been in service for 40 years.

The 2014-15 PGCCS Head Start staff includes, Hilda Cardenas Site Manager, Teresita Martinez-Olmos Teacher-PIC, Terry Gonzales Assistant Teacher, and LaToya Coronado-Alvarado Classroom Support Aide. Of course, Superior Head Start invites members of the community to volunteer, as well.

By request, a copy of the patient visit can be sent to the patient's Primary Care Physician.

Panthers too much for Wildkats in opener

By Andrew Luberda
Superior Sun

Despite only a limited number of practices under their belt due to some late scheduling changes, the Panthers looked in midseason form as they routed the Duncan Wildkats last Friday, 48 – 0. The game was the season opener for both schools.

“We came out focused and determined,” Panthers’ head coach Ryan Palmer said after the game. “The players did an excellent job of executing the game plan, especially on defense. It was a total team effort.”

The shutout was the first by a Panthers’ team since a 42 – 0 season opening win over Patagonia on August 28, 2009. Sophomore Edgar Pacheco led the team with nine tackles in the game. Seniors Eric Oatis and Matthew Zavala each tallied seven tackles. Elias Olmos had a 20-yard interception return.

Newcomer Michael Salazar made a first good impression with his new teammates, scoring three touchdowns (1 rushing, 2 receiving) in his first game. He led the Panthers with 116 all-purpose yards. Sophomore quarterback Gage Cruz proved to be too much for the Wildkats defense, rushing for 81 yards on 10 carries and throwing for 152 more with three touchdown passes. Pacheco made an impact on offense too, rushing 63 yards and two touchdowns. Austin Navarrette caught a 17-yard touchdown pass from Cruz, as well.

“Our speed was the biggest factor,” Palmer answered when asked what his team did well in the victory. “We were definitely outsized, but our team speed more than made up for it.”

Palmer saw some things which need to be improved, including more consistency on offense. Against some stiffer competition, lack of consistency could come back to haunt his team. Reducing mental mistakes and penalties are also areas of concern for the Panthers’ coach. With a bye this week, the Panthers will have time to work on improving in those areas.

“We were able to bail ourselves out with the big play,” said Palmer, referring to how the Panthers overcame mistakes in

Friday’s game. “We will be game planning for Ft Thomas, but we are going to use this extra week to get better at technique, fundamentals and timing.”

The growing pains of last year appear to have paid dividends so far. The Panthers equaled last season’s win total in the first game of this season. And it’s likely just the first of many more in 2014.

After a bye this week, the Panthers take on Ft Thomas in their home opener on September 5. Kickoff is scheduled for 7:00 p.m.

Work on the converter retrofit will be performed as to not disrupt the operation of the smelter and keep all employees working their regular daily schedules, said Krishna Parameswaran, director of environmental services and compliance assurances at ASARCO. The smelting plant must operate within the EPA emission limits by Oct. 3, 2018.

The smelter and surrounding operations are an important parts of the Hayden economy. It employs 1,400 hourly and salaried workers, who are annually paid $140.8 million in wages, salaries and fringe benefits. The operations also generate $28.6 million in property, severance and sales taxes. The company annually generates spending of $345.8 million on materials, fuel and supplies into the Arizona economy.

Each year the Hayden smelter produces more than 300 million tons of copper that is important in all electrical products, electronic equipment, and even bringing electricity to homes, according to Kelly Norton, president of the Arizona Mining Association. The smelter also produces more than 575,000 short tons of sulfuric acid each year.

Although originally built in 1912, the Hayden smelter has been expanded and upgraded on a regular basis, with the last major renovations taking place in 1989 and 1996. In 2012, ASARCO voluntarily undertook a $10 million project to reduce lead emissions through the addition of a monitor system to keep lead emissions within EPA rules issued in 2008 that trimmed allowable emission levels to one-tenth of the former standard.

The EPA-required Hayden smelter renovation projects comes only a step behind a more expensive project for the smelter in Miami owned by Freeport-McMoRan. Budgeted at $450 million, the Miami smelter will receive new converter mouth covers, converter aisle canopy hoods and aisle scrubbers, an anode plant bag house and a smelter furnace upgrade to meet EPA SO₂ emission limits.

Freeport-McMoRan received its permit on July 21 and has begun renovation work that could be completed by the end of 2017. The Miami smelter, which was originally built in 1915, also has undergone numerous upgrades, expansions and renovations in the interim.

Norton emphasized at the meeting that copper smelting is an important contributor to the Arizona economy. At present there are only three copper smelting plants in the US and two are in Arizona (Hayden and Miami). The third is in Salt Lake County, UT, Norton noted.

EMISSIONS

Quality (ADEQ), could result in a major shift in how electricity is generated and distributed throughout the state, especially in the Phoenix metropolitan area.

The result could be, especially during the transition period, a less certain flow of electricity for air conditioning in summer, which could negatively impact the health of people and stifle the current growth of the Arizona economy, she said.

In her testimony at the Committee meeting, Hager noted that Arizona would have to trim its CO₂ output by 52% by 2030, which is exceeded only by the 54% required for Washington State. The goal excludes the Navajo Generating Station, which EPA will deal with separately.

“Based on the proposed rules, Arizona will have to reduce its carbon intensity of 702 lbs/MWh by 2030, and that could require a major shift in the mix of existing power sources,” Hager said. “A substantial percentage of Arizona electricity is generated by burning fossil fuels.

“Achieving the EPA goals would require a huge shift from coal-fired to natural gas-fired generation to meet interim and final goals. The state also would have to beef up generation from low-emitting power sources like solar, wind and nuclear power. Additional trims in CO₂ emissions would come from improved energy efficiency of homes and businesses, and reduced energy demand. And EPA will require states to meet 77% of their goals by 2020,” she added.

A shift from coal-fired to natural gas-fired generation also would greatly alter electricity transmission patterns, added John Lesueur, assistant director of the Utilities Division of the Arizona Corporation Commission.

Much of the coal-fired generation is located in the eastern part of Arizona while much of the natural gas-fired generation is in the west, primarily due to independent firms building gas generation plants to sell electricity to utilities in California when that state permitted merchant competition, he said. As those gas generation plants have had minimal use, it is not known if they can provide the steady flow of electricity Arizona needs especially during summer air conditioning season. The result could be more power interruptions in the East Valley (including sections of Pinal County) as the traditional flow of electricity from east to west is reversed from west to east.

When asked if Arizona could add more nuclear generation capacity to augment the electricity state utilities get from the Palos Verde Plant in Tonopah, Lesueur explained that it takes at least five years to build and get a nuclear plant up and running so it couldn’t figure in short-term goals set for 2020.

An additional complaint concerning the possible shift from coal to gas generation, Committee member State Rep. Albert Hale noted that coal mining on Indian reservations is a major source of jobs and income for these people, and thus should be preserved. Arizona’s coal-fired generation plants are major customers of reservation mined coal.

Prior to EPA’s announcement, Arizona had been making much progress in reducing emissions. Since 2005, the state has already trimmed nitrogen oxide emissions by 50% and SO₂ emissions by more than 35%, Hager said. Arizona already generates substantial electricity from solar energy and state utilities are required to generate 15% of electricity from renewable sources by 2025.

To draft Arizona’s plan to meet the proposed EPA rules, ADEQ is working with utilities and other stakeholders, she noted. ADEQ also is drafting comments on the EPA plan to submit before October 16 explaining the unique circumstances of Arizona’s climate that might make the planned emission trims unreachable.

And ADEQ is exploring the possibility of filing a lawsuit – alone or with other states – to challenge EPA authority to set CO₂ emission reduction goals, arguing that the Clean Air Act only empowers EPA to set procedures for reducing emissions, not goals. Several attendees of the meeting, including Andy Tobin, current Arizona House Speaker and candidate for U.S. Congress in the 1st Arizona District; and Gila County Supervisor Mike Pastor, both urged ADEQ to proceed with the lawsuit.

Playoffs or bust for Panthers girls' volleyball

By Andrew Luberda
Superior Sun

Last year the Panthers finished with a record of 13 – 10, just missing a berth in the state playoffs. Head coach Cheryl Lopez returns seven players from last year's team – four seniors and three juniors – and didn't mince words when asked what her expectations were for the 2014 season.

"I expect to make it to state this year," she answered. Lopez knows the Panthers are in a very competitive section with teams like Ray and St. John's, who each reached the playoffs last year.

"We had a winning season last year," Lopez said. "Our returning girls are strong and determined to have more wins (this year)."

In order to achieve "more wins" in 2014, Lopez wants to see her improve communication on the court and work as a team unit. So far so good, she says.

"I guarantee an exciting volleyball season," said a confident Lopez.

The Panthers open their season on September 2, 2014, at home versus Hayden. The match is scheduled for 6:00 p.m. Other upcoming games include September 10 @ Duncan (5:00 p.m.) and a home match versus Globe on September 11 (6:00 p.m.).
