ADEQ launches Arizona Brownfields Grant StoryMap

Tool shows how millions in brownfields grant investments in Arizona communities are cleaning up blighted properties and reaping public health, environmental and economic benefits

Arizona communities have leveraged brownfields grants to revitalize blighted properties statewide since 2005. Brownfields grants help municipalities and nonprofits identify and reduce environmental hazards, mitigate public health threats, create new business opportunities, increase tax revenues and restore impacted properties to beneficial reuse.

"Brownfields grants are a wonderful avenue for municipalities and nonprofits to address local environmental issues. These projects serve the people of Arizona by giving good attention and care to these properties that too often become obstacles to a community's ability to grow," said Arizona Department of Environmental Quality Director Karen Peters.

To start this year's grant cycle, the Arizona Department of Environmental Quality (ADEQ) introduces its Brownfields Grant Program Online StoryMap (<https://bit.ly/44zAztM>), an ArcGIS tool anyone can use to view and read all the stories behind the brownfields transformations we helped make happen. This GIS-driven tool was created and launched primarily by two ADEQ interns.

With just a click and a scroll, anyone can see photos and

Superior students become official Chief Science Officers

The Arizona Sci-Tech Institute recently invited the Town of Superior to participate in the Chief Science Officer (CSO) program. The CSO Program seeks to enhance the workforce and employability skills of 6th - 12th graders and their peers. They help to foster a global network of diverse STEM leaders prepared for college, career and civic engagement.

The Superior students will participate in the program in conjunction with other students from across Arizona and will develop sustainability programs and communications in their individual communities. The CSO program is recognized globally with chapters Mexico, Kuwait and the United Kingdom, Canada and Turkey along with other US states like California, Texas, Washington, Hawaii and many others.

The Superior Enterprise Center in conjunction with the Town of Superior, Superior Unified School District and Rebuild Superior are assisting with ensuring Superior students have access to these programs. The CSO program aligns with the Superior Enterprise Centers commitment to growing a diversified economy through job training and entrepreneurial development.

"Our students and young adults consistently represent Superior well. I am excited to see the projects and programs they develop for sustainability in Superior," said Mayor Mila Besich.

Participating in the program are: John Tomerlin, Marshall Tomerlin, Hector Aparicio, Stasja Ellison, and Victoria Casillas.

Superior Enterprise Center Director Arlynn Godinez and SUSD CTE Teacher Valerie Garcia serve as advisors for the program.

"We are excited to be part of Sci Tech's Chief Science Officer Program. Our CSOs will create action plans that will use STEM to positively impact our community. We have an amazing group of student leaders who are going to do incredible things this year," said Arlynn Godinez, Director of the Superior Enterprise Center.

Arizona Sci Tech Institute is a nonprofit organization dedicated to enhancing and promoting STEM education and awareness in Arizona and beyond. They fulfill their mission by conducting the Chief Science Officers program, Arizona STEM Fest, the RAIN grant and more.

Ariel Aparicio running for Fiesta Queen

Ariel Aparicio, a fourth grader at John F. Kennedy Elementary School, has decided to run for the Saint Francis of Assisi Catholic Church Fiesta Queen. After completing her Holy Communion earlier this Spring she asked her parents if she could run for Fiesta Queen to help raise money for her church.

The selection of a Fiesta Queen, has been a tradition for generations in her family. Ariel's grandmother Jesse Palacios was a fiesta queen, along with several of her Tias and Cousins.

"I wanted to follow in my family footsteps," she said.

Ariel and her family have already hosted several fundraisers including a pastry bingo and a menudo breakfast. Currently they are conducting a raffle for ASU Football tickets and plan to host a fundraiser during the Prickly Pear Festival in August. Fundraisers are promoted on Facebook.

Her favorite subject in school is math. Her favorite colors are purple and red. She enjoys playing softball with her friends and dancing with the Superior Dance Company.

Ariel is the daughter of Hector and Dianella Aparicio. Hector is a mechanic for Salt River Project and Dianella is the owner of Nini Cakes. She has an older sister Rhianna Aceves-Aparaicio and an older brother Hector Aparicio Jr. Their family lives in Superior with their pets – four dogs, a cat and a pig to be exact.

"I want to thank my Nina Angel, Nino Bill, Nina Mikee, Nana Jesse, Nina Carmen, Yolanda, my Tia Chella, Tia Margie, Tia China and all my family for helping me raise money for the Church," said Ariel.

The annual Saint Francis of Assisi Catholic Church will host their annual Fiesta on Saturday, Sept. 16. The winner is determined by who raises the most money during the queen season.

At press time, Ariel is the only candidate running for Fiesta Queen.

Ariel Aparicio is running for 2023 St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church Fiesta Queen.

read stories about historic structures and main streets redeveloped to boost tourism and community services, new greenspaces created, and health care facilities added where they are most needed.

“Arizona’s brownfields grants help create opportunities for our communities that weren’t there before,” said ADEQ Brownfields Coordinator Travis Barnum. “When a blighted site is cleaned up, it’s a boon to local families and businesses, and with this online story map, you can see their inspiring stories all in one place.”

In fiscal year 2023, ADEQ awarded $1,275,000 in brownfields grants to support 17 projects to assess and clean up brownfields sites, including two in the Copper Corridor:

- Globe, AZ: The City of Globe took ownership of a defunct commercial space that struggled to keep tenants after the anchor business moved to a new location. The City of Globe approved a reuse plan for the site as a new firehouse station. Before the existing structure could be demolished, the building materials needed to be cleared of asbestos containing materials. ADEQ awarded the City of Globe $52,000 to remove the asbestos from the building to make way for the new fire station.

- Superior, AZ: The Town of Superior acquired the historical Superior High School which is being renovated into a new Town Hall as well as a campus for job training, entrepreneurial support and co-working, featuring library services, a senior center, community recreation, and more. Our $155,000 grant covered the cost of safely removing asbestos from the former high school, allowing renovations to go forward. ADEQ both administers a state-level brownfields assistance program to provide brownfields grant funds and helps municipal and nonprofit applicants prepare successful federal grant applications.

AZ STRUT hosts second Tech Camp in Superior

Copper Corridor middle and high school students Monday got the chance to learn how computers work and how to repair them thanks to AZ STRUT, one of the newest local non-profits to open a small business in Superior at the Superior Town Hall Complex.

AZ Strut was introduced to Superior in partnership with Chicanos Por La Causa and the Superior Enterprise Center which helped to arrange a free computer give away in Superior earlier this year. During the initial give away, over 300 computers were given away to residents across the Copper Corridor.

Students who participated for three hours received a free laptop. Students who completed the camp will also be given an opportunity to earn money refurbishing computers.

AZ STRUT a non-profit that refurbishes computers offers free computer training. It now has a physical location in Superior and is offering another tech camp for students in grades 6th - 12th. These programs help to train students on how computers work and how to repair computers. This program also helps to build career skills in the information technology sector.

The Superior Enterprise Center is assisting with the coordination of the Techie Camps. For more information, please call Superior Enterprise Center Director, Arlynn Godinez at 520-827-0433.
